Editorial

Dear Readers,

Well, readers, Summer's gone and as we embark on a new season I trust you all had the best of times and not the worst of times.

The mail has been flooding in with words of praise regarding the talents of our very own "Tina Alameda." Her creative abilities will entertain and amuse you in future issues, I'm sure.

As you can see we have some very lovely "girls" to ponder and dream about. We look forward to your comments as usual and perhaps that "special" shot of yourself doing "your thing."

News flash! The unparalleled success of "Sulka's Wedding" has stirred the public opinion so much that a sequel is now under way. No, it's not "Sulka's Divorce," but you'll just go crazy over the "Newborn."

By the way, "Carnal Candy" has a new film being released this fall titled "Crimes of Passions." Wait till you get a load of "her." And if I do say so myself she's fantastic in the part.

Well, until next issue, keep in touch. Love ya dearly.

*Happy dressing!
Kim Christy*

“When I saw ‘Cabaret,’ with Liza Minelli, I was only fourteen at the time. I was hooked. I loved the whole look and feel of pre-war Germany. I read all of Christopher Isherwood’s books about the time. I bought a book of George Groz prints. The look of stylized decadence and sexual ambiguity has been something I’ve sought after in my own life.”

“The only aspect of the Berlin trip that turns me off is the Nazis. Otherwise, I just think of myself as a modern day Sally Bowles.”

Linda Lee's Pages

Well, here I am again, feeling only slightly foolish.

The "slightly foolish" is because I happily nattered away last time about some of my favorite pictures which, as it turned out, they didn't run.

The confusion arose when Kim neglected to mention that not all the proofs she marked were going to be used. The art department was merely going to pick and choose among them.

So . . . here at the head of this column is my favorite of the whole session (or at least of the black and white shots which is all I've seen so far . . .). I mentioned this one specifically last time saying that it, at least, didn't make me look "all teeth, gums and nose . . ."

That quote gives a bit of a false impression, I'm afraid. It makes it sound as though I merely didn't dislike that shot. Actually I liked it a lot, even though I do seem to be pointing to a freckle just north of my left nipple. But what the heck . . . I've always liked freckles and since I don't have many I have to point them out.

By and large I was reasonably pleased with the way the pictures turned out. At least I doubt they'll be used to frighten small children . . . ("Eat all your porridge, my dears, or the transsexual will get you . . .")

On the other hand there is room for improvement . . . perhaps even a little urban renewal in the nose department.

After years of thinking about it, doing this photo session moved me to actually doing something . . . at least take a first step. So . . . I now have an appointment with a "nose man" who comes highly recommended for a consultation. I'll let you know the results next time.

One of the things I realized from looking at the proofs is how much my nose "spreads out" when I smile. My gosh, it's like setting Jell-o on a warm griddle!

On the other hand, perhaps smog makes it expand. And it certainly was smoggy when I got to L.A. Not just a light haze, mind you, but that thick brown soupy stuff like mother used to make . . . the kind of air you can slice up and send to your friends in other states.

Incidentally, the word "smog" was not invented to describe the air in Los Angeles. It was coined to describe the air in the industrialized parts of Scotland and has been around since the last century, at least according to David Niven who ought to know having, among other things, served several years with the Highland Light Infantry.

There are lots of things I like about Los Angeles. Smog isn't any of them.

Several of the shots I especially liked weren't used for the article and will probably turn up from time to time as headings for this column.

I'm not sure it was fair for Kim to put me in the same issue with Heather Fontaine, but these things can't always be helped, I guess.

Incidentally, this is not the only magazine in which I have had full-page pictures lately. My friend (I feel honored to consider him so, at least) Mr. Tetsuji Saito, founder of the Fuki Club in Tokyo, sent me the current issue of THE QUEEN, the major Japanese magazine for

Letters to the Editor

If you wish to write to Kim and possibly have your correspondence published, please address it to Kim Christy, C/O FEMALE MIMICS INTERNATIONAL, P.O. BOX 1622, Studio City, CA 91604.

Dear Kim,

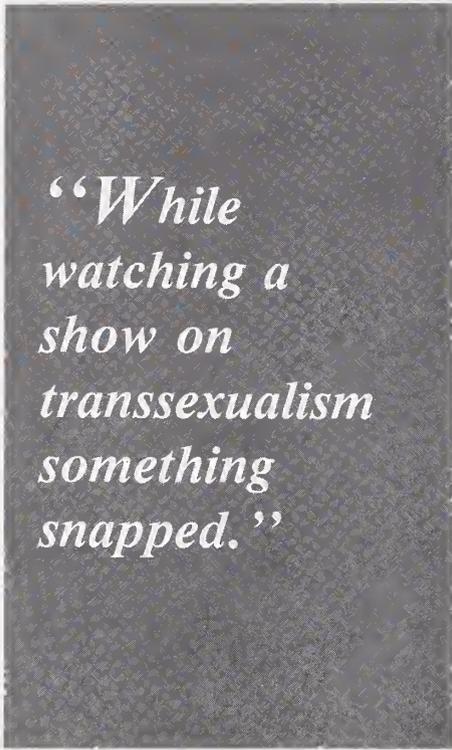

This is the weekend I have been waiting for. My wife is away and for the first time ever I am spending 3 glorious days totally dressed!

I started dressing with my sister's pantyhose when in high school. In college I had little time alone and my dressing became a thing of the past. When I got married my free time alone returned when my wife and I were put on different work shifts.

While watching a talk show on transsexualism something snapped, my curiosity aroused I went into my wife's lingerie drawer and in a matter of minutes I had stripped and started putting on her clothes. My wife still does not know and if she finds out I'm sure we are through.

Unlike my early dressing sessions I now have become particular about the types of dresses and skirts I wear. I have also discovered TV magazines like FMI, my personal favorite, and they have now succeeded in bringing the woman in me to the point she is now out of control.

Now 26, I want to share my she side and be appreciated and understood. Please give me any advice you can for someone in my position.

“While watching a show on transsexualism something snapped.”

Some questions:

1) Is my female side a permafixture or can she be eliminated?

2) Is it unusual that I as a male am aggressive, but when I dress I feel more submissive and helpless?

3) Would a dominatrix be the best way to force me to develop my female side and if so are there any in my area you can refer me to?

4) I have always been heterosexual, but as my dressing increased so did my curiosity about performing sex acts as a woman. Is that indicative I am now homosexual!

5) My interest in females is now purely in their look and how I can become more like them. Does that mean my heterosexual days are over?

6) Should I continue to try to hold in my feminine side or is that just making matters worse?

7) About Wild & Kinky Michelle, is it possible to write to her and if so does she train males as TV slaves?

Sorry to be so long but I really would appreciate your help. A closeted and loyal reader.

Love,
Jill

Dear Jill,

I think you only have to ask yourself one question; what would really make you happy and comfortable, then go for it.

*Wishing you happiness,
Kim Christy*

Dearest Kim,

About two years ago I wrote to you telling you and your readers of my passion for women's clothes and the female in general. I started by trying my sister's nylons on at age 15 and eventually found myself in head to toe women's clothes. At the time of my last letter I was married and still in the closet and your advice was: life is too short to hold in my feelings. Well, they are now out and I feel so much better.

My wife and I had been having difficulties but she never learned of my dressing. About a month ago I moved out, I could no longer keep up my male masquerade. I now have my own apartment, a few clothes, a post office box, and I am finally following in your high heeled footsteps.

I dress everyday, have shaved all my body hair and am letting my hair on my head grow longer. I have named myself Denise, and spend nearly all my private waking hours dressed as a girl. I no longer throw out my TV & TS magazines, but save them on a shelf, I can't get enough info.

I have yet to meet a companion but hope to meet a sister very soon. When I first started dressing, any clothes would do, but now I am getting very particular and I hope that is a sign of a growth in my female personality.

The only part of my personality that really bothers me is the part that wants to be dominated by a woman, to totally eliminate my male side which I'm afraid is still there.

Please provide any advice you can for me as a new woman. Do you advise waiting to try for hormones to give my breasts which I so badly have come to want?

Thank you for the previous words of encouragement which are helping to turn my fascination into reality.

Love & kisses,
Denise

P.S. Hope to have some pictures of the new me once I learn the finer points of make-up.

Dear Denise,

Take your time, breasts are not for everyone. Perhaps just dressing and finding your inner-self for awhile may be a better situation judging by the background you have given me. Being a woman is not just physical, remember. You have have much to learn before you should go any further.

*Best of luck,
Kim Christy*

Dear Editor,

I would like to know more about transvestites. If there are any books on TVs which can help me to better understand, please send a list of titles and addresses where I may acquire them.

Things most needed to know are: Why I enjoy dressing as a female; how I can make others understand; ways in which I can deal with habits; places such as bookstores which specialize in TVs in and around the Denver area; places I can go to meet other transvestites in the Denver area; pen pals I could write to, or that could write me.

Jackie

Dear Jackie

Start by running an ad in either FMI or another similar magazine to get acquainted with people in your area. Things have a way of working out that way.

Kim Christy

Dear Female Mimics,

Today was the first day I bought your magazine, and I'm glad I did.

My name is Steve, and I'm a 26-year-old male. My dream is to find a transsexual who would, like myself, want to live a lifetime relationship: one-to-one. I don't know where to go or what to do to accomplish this. Despite my young age, I'm a very successful computer executive analyst with relatively high income. I'm very attractive and easy going, I don't have problems to find a girlfriend, but that's not really what I want. I DO WANT to find a transsexual to spend my life with. I always have been extremely attracted to TSs, but can't find my right lover, probably because I don't know where to look. I hope your magazine can help me.

My dream is to find a TS pre-operation or post-operation, a person who sincerely seeks long term, preferably lifetime "husband" relationship. I'm willing to help, and we have an excellent sex-change surgeon here in Colorado—Trinidad's Doctor Biber. My dream TS is 18-30, possibly younger, attractive, but also stable and with a good personality. I'm not looking for a model, but I'm seeking an ordinary good TS.

"I don't have problems finding girlfriends but that's not what I really want."

If I tell my problems to someone, they just assume I'm a confused gay, but that's not the truth . . . I sincerely do seek my dream TS, and I won't be happy till I find my lifemate.

I would like you to print my letter in your magazine if possible and I also would like to place an ad in your magazine. The text of my ad is included on a separate sheet. I have read your magazine from A-Z, but I didn't find any information about the cost of your advertisement. I would like to place my ad in three issues, and if it's required, please send me the bill, which I'll return with a check payment as soon as I get it.

However, I would like to receive at least a short note stating you have received my letter.

Thank you.

Sincerely your friend,
Steve

Dear Steve,

You sounded like a great catch, if I wasn't already married I'd be on a plane to Denver.

Hope this spot gets you what you are looking for. Girls, throw on some lipstick and get this man!!!

crossdressers. There I was in full color on two pages.

This came as a total surprise, but it was largely a pleasant one. THE QUEEN is a very nicely-done magazine of digest size. The covers and color pages are often exceptional and some of the people in the correspondence pages make me wish I read and wrote Japanese.

Let me use this space to send greetings to all our Japanese readers and invite those who would like to, to write to me care of Ozma Productions, P.O. Box 23001, Oakland, California, U.S.A. 94623. I'm always fascinated to hear from people in other parts of the world.

Thinking of that . . . Mr. Saito writes that he has heard that the TVs and TSs have been forced out of Singapore's famous Bugis Street because the road is being re-built, and that many of them have wound up in Hawaii.

I hadn't heard any of this and wonder if any of our readers can shed more light on the story. If you can I'd appreciate hearing from you.

When my copy of FMI #16 arrived here I noticed I'd become "Our Own Linda Lee" . . . Hmmmmm, if they're going to be that possessive, maybe I ought to ask for more money.

I also noticed that I'd been "scooped" on what I thought would be my big story, the item about Robert Sylvester, former St. Paul, Minnesota city councilman, who is now living as Susan Kimberly.

Actually I'm just as glad I was scooped because the information in #16 was much more complete than what I had which was a much smaller item from, I believe, a Chicago paper which a friend had kindly sent to me.

The thing that struck me about the smaller item was that it was completely matter-of-fact. There was a simple statement of the basic facts under the heading "Changed." It's sort of a nice feeling that the subject can be covered in such a non-sensational way.

I think one reason it was treated with so little hoopla was that Susan Kimberly doesn't seem to be trying to look like a fashion model or like Marilyn Monroe but simply like an ordinary working woman. I'm sure it's easier for people to deal with someone who doesn't look too different from the people they routinely see rather than someone so striking she would stand out and inevitably attract attention even if she were a genetic woman.

I've occasionally wondered how, for instance, Sulka could ever blend into a crowd when she wants to. And there are times when everyone wants to. Kim told me once about being recognized at an airport and how embarrassing it was.

And my therapist told me that a former client of hers (who had since moved to Southern California) reported spotting me at a supermarket in L.A. (which would be possible when I visit my family) though since the person didn't attempt to make contact, it's impossible to say for sure whether it was really me they spotted.

The point is, though, that even if it's easier for Kim or for me to keep a low profile, we still are recognized now and then.

How much harder it must be for, say, someone like Tula or April Ashley whose faces were known to so many from the modeling work they did.

Thinking of April Ashley, I promised I'd report on her book APRIL ASHLEY'S ODYSSEY which I mentioned back in FMI #15 in connection with a comment about her divorce and the far-reaching consequences it had for all transgendered people in Britain.

I just finished the book and I found it very strange.

April Ashley seems to be intelligent and observant. She describes things precisely enough and occasionally comes up with an insight that is penetrating and illuminating.

But most of the time it's as though she can write about other things but not about herself, or at least not about what's going on inside her.

She does a fairly good job about what it was like growing up transgendered, but once she has her surgery (at the fairly early age of 25) there's almost no real sense of what she feels until some sequences near the end of the book.

It's almost as though she's wrapped in plastic, or perhaps titanium would be more apt because it seems to be a hard shell, indeed.

The middle of the book is a seemingly endless series of "I met Lord So-and-so." or "Lady Thus-and-such never could deal with my past."

Perhaps what I missed most from the character of April Ashley was any sense, from the book, that she ever really connected with people in an emotional way. She mentions a lot of sexual encounters, some extending over a long period of time, yet there's no real sense of attachment, of intimacy, of caring for someone just because they are who they are. She may have felt all this but it doesn't come across when she writes.

The only time I got something like this feeling was in a conversation she had with a lover, some years after he died. (No . . . she wasn't into spiritualism, she simply needed someone to talk to; there was no one around, and so she had a conversation with Edward Madoc who had died earlier in a car crash.)

This sequence was rather touching, but even this brings up one of April Ashley's least attractive traits. She seems to simply dote on death, especially violent death, and

“Coming home from work is the end of a day for most people, but not for me.”

“I like to get out of my heels and relax with a cigarette first thing.”

“Then get out of those work clothes and into something cool and flimsy.”

“Like this.”

“Some nights I stay up and catch a seamy movie on T.V., or maybe plug in a cassette of ‘guess who?’ ”

“A girl must stay in shape so . . . Wed. is tennis night and some cocktails with some tennis buffs.”

“Some evenings when I’m in the mood and no one calls I get a little bit ‘teed off.’ ”

“And I get very assertive and I make a call—and presto! A dinner date! The power of the ‘Feminine Mystique’ is amazing, isn’t it?”

“Hi, nice to see you—told you I’d be ready in a few minutes. Of course he didn’t know I was ready before we even talked. Shh!”

“Well it’s Sat. again and into my tights to work at the ‘Club.’ ”

“Waiting on tables can be fun. You meet some fun people.”

“If someone doesn’t show or is sick—A chance to dance in the chorus line. Now that’s not work—is it?”

“Well, everyone needs their day of rest, right?”

“So I’ll just coop-up on my satin sheets and wait for the phone to ring. Perhaps it may be you!”

About a third of the way through the book, in fact, she apologises for the number of suicides that have cropped up and promises to bring down the body count but I didn't notice any significant change.

What is perhaps most aggravating about these episodes is that so often they are quite gratuitous, for the people involved are neither close to her nor important to the book in any other way.

I'll cite an example I happened to turn to by chance. Speaking of a friend named Viva King, April Ashley writes "But the only man she ever really loved was Philip Heseltine who composed under the name Peter Warlock. He gassed himself to death in 1930."

Now this suicide has absolutely nothing to do with April Ashley's life and precious little to do with Viva King as April Ashley portrays her. The question is, then, why is it there, and the answer seems to be that April Ashley enjoys such things.

Indeed, her whole attitude, her "life script" as those in Transactional Analysis would call it seems to be that of someone who decided very early on that she was a failure.

Indeed, she admits, at one point, contrasting herself to Amanda Lear, that she doesn't learn from her mistakes. Given that, failure seems inevitable unless at some point she sorts herself out enough to realize that she can change if she wants to.

Another annoying habit she has is to completely drop people who have been quite important to her story. For instance, judging from what she writes, her best friend at Le Carrousel where she worked for several years was Bambi, whom many of you FMI readers may remember as being a beautiful impersonator with a fresh, girlish "Carol Lynley" look.

But at age twenty-five April

Ashley makes her decision to have surgery. She asks Bambi if she, too, will come along to have surgery (apparently it was something they had discussed often . . .). But Bambi surprises her by bursting into tears and saying "No, it's becoming too fashionable." And this is virtually the last we hear of Bambi. As important as she has been there is no further word on her although April Ashley keeps contact with several of her co-workers from Le Carrousel.

Frankly I cared far more about what happened to Bambi than I did about Philip Heseltine gassing himself five years before April Ashley was born.

As far as I know, the book hasn't been picked up by an American publisher, but Lee Brewster in N.Y.C. has copies and says it is selling very well. (Incidentally, the last time Lee's address turned up in this column, it was incorrect. It should be Lee's Mardi Gras Boutique. P.O. Box 843, NYC 10108.)

Of course April Ashley isn't the only person to have her black moments. I think every transgendered person experiences them. In fact I think every person who is at all sensitive experiences them . . . perhaps transgendered people just have a bit more raw material to work with.

Certainly I have my share, perhaps even more than my share. Lately some of my recently post-op friends have developed new relationships and I have to admit it sometimes makes me wistful and sometimes really depressed, thinking about the contrast with being perpetually "in between."

As I expressed it to a friend the other day . . . if there were a pill that I could take and when I woke up I wouldn't be transgendered, I'd take it. More . . . if the pill had a side effect and I wouldn't know whether I'd wake up male or female I'd still take it provided I woke up no longer transgendered.

But here I am . . . as my therapist put it, the ". . . only person I've ever worked with whose core gender identity I'd classify as 'androgynous.'"

Unique can be really lonely sometimes.

This remark about my core gender came, by the way, shortly before we spoke at University of San Francisco which I mentioned as a coming event in FMI #15. The talk went very well and, while I was there, I took the BEM Sex-Role Inventory, a short psychological test the rest of the class had taken previously.

The results surprised me a great deal (as they surprised the professor and my therapist . . .) for I came out with a higher feminine score than anyone else in the class, and I would have guessed that I'd score much more "on the edge." Still, it was interesting as I'd never before taken any of the masculine-feminine psychological tests.

On the other hand, being reasonably psychologically sophisticated, I may have "psyched-out" the test (it was pretty transparent, after all . . .) but if so it was unconscious as I went through the test very rapidly and tried not to change my mind so that my true "gut" reaction was what I got. (In fact the times I did change my mind it was generally in a "more masculine" direction.)

I did one other talk, in June, for National Sex Forum (the people for whom I first began speaking in public . . .), and was scheduled to do another last weekend but had to cancel as there was an unintentional conflict in my schedule.

Perhaps it was just as well, as it allowed me to have electrolysis on my upper lip the previous day without worrying about looking like something out of THE TWILIGHT ZONE. I had a dentist anesthetize the lip so I didn't feel anything, but I certainly looked like I had an overbite for a couple of days. (I envy

AUNTY

Next morning, being Monday, Sarah and her charge had breakfast together and then got ready to return to the orphanage. Paul was very sad to be going back, and Sarah sensed this from the unhappy expression on his handsome face.

“Did you enjoy your long weekend with me?”

“Oh yes, yes, aunty, very much indeed. It was all so wonderful. Unbelievable really. Please let me come again and stay with you. I’ll do anything you ask; you know that, aunty, don’t you.”

“Good. Yes, my dear, I understand. I enjoyed having you with me, too. But you must remember to call me Mrs. Wilson, or Miss, once we get back to the Centre,” she reminded him, “and not a word to anyone what we do in my house.”

For the rest of the week he did not forget, and he was careful to call her Mrs. Wilson when in front of other people, or simply “Miss,” but when they were alone they kissed each other with a passion that took his breath away, and she often rubbed the front of his trousers playfully until she could feel he was hard. She loved to feel his strong erection through his trousers and would excite him further by saying, “I can feel it wants aunty’s panties, doesn’t it dear . . . it wants aunty’s nice soft, warm panties. Be patient, my pet; wait until Friday, then I will get a nice pair of my panties for you to have in bed. Which color do you like the best, dear? Blue ones, black, white, or maybe red ones, eh?”

He moaned with pleasure and grew harder from eager anticipation at the thought of Friday’s visit to

Mrs. Wilson's house again and her lovely knickers being used to wank him off again. The mere thought of the smooth material made his cock twitch and ache.

Friday came at last, and at the end of the afternoon Paul was happily whistling to himself as he helped to load his things into Mrs. Wilson's car. A whole weekend with aunty! This time the entire weekend would be spent as close and special friends.

The next day they spent going round the local museums and when they returned to her home they were quite tired. "I think you had better go to bed early tonight Paul, we have had a tiring day. You go up to bed and I will come and see you in a few minutes."

He had not been in bed more than a few minutes when Sarah glided into the room and sat down on the bed in her usual position. She was wearing a short nylon nighty with pretty flowers on it. She smiled at him. "Aunty has brought Paulie some pretty panties. You do like Aunty's panties don't you?"

"Oh yes . . . yes . . . yes I do."

"Good, then tell me you want aunty's panties, Paul. I want to hear you say it."

"I want . . . Aunty's panties," he was getting really excited merely by talking like that and was warming to the idea more all the time. "Yes, I want Aunty's panties, I love Aunty's panties. I love them. I love them."

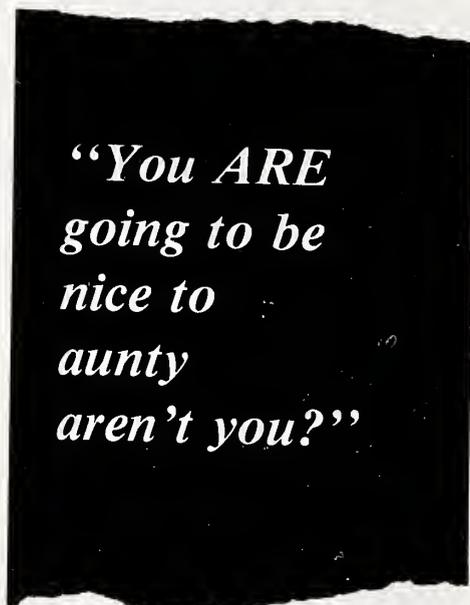

Sarah pulled back his bed clothes to reveal his rampant cock. She smiled down at him, well pleased with what she saw. She held out a pair of black knickers for him to look at and when he had gazed at them for a moment or so she gently wrapped them around his throbby shaft.

"That's what you want isn't it pet, a pair of Aunty's silky knickers."

"Yes . . . oh . . . yes," he nodded his head vigorously, and settled back with his head on his pillow. How wonderfully passive he is, she thought to herself, what wonderful material for me to work on. She knew he was waiting for her to start wanking him again as she had done the previous night after wrapping her warm knickers around his penis, but tonight it was going to be a little different. She was not going to give him his pleasure so easily, tonight he was to be taught pleasures have to be deserved and earned, and he was to learn what he must do have pleasure privileges.

She climbed onto his bed and knelt astride his chest, facing him. "Paulie is all tense isn't he?" she chided him,

"and he wants a nice little wanking doesn't he eh?"

He nodded, puzzled as to why she was delaying in doing it when she clearly knew what he wanted.

"Aunty too gets all tense and restless but has no one to help her. But now she's got her special friend Paulie, and aunty wants Paulie to be nice to her. Are you going to be nice to Aunty, pet?"

She shuffled forward so that her thighs were either side of his head and her lower body touching his chin. "You ARE going to be nice to Aunty aren't you?"

Never had Paul had so strong a smell of femininity in his nostrils than this moment. He took deep breaths, he wanted to inhale that aroma forever. She smiled down at him, she could tell he was completely enraptured by that womanly-body-scent and she deftly raised herself on her knees, shuffled forward a little more, and then gently lowered her crotch until her cunt flesh touched his mouth and the hem of her nighty resting on his face. Eagerly the young Paul began kissing and then licking her fleshy cunt-lips, and she sensed he was as ready and willing to do this to her as she was to allow him such liberties.

"That's it pet, do that, it's so nice for Aunty," she reached behind her with one hand and began to very gently wank him with the soft panties, while with the other hand she lightly caressed his hair and forehead to show how much she enjoyed what he was doing to her.

"Stick your tongue out my pet so you can touch my little button and really taste me," her tone of voice as well as her words excited and encouraged the naive youth, and he needed no second bidding. Eagerly he thrust his tongue out and rubbed its tip along the warm, moistening flesh of her cunt-lips. He soon found he could push his tongue actually inside the womanly entrance and when he tasted the oily sharp juices he thought he would ejaculate right away from the sheer erotic stimulation of, for the very first time, sampling a woman's sexual discharge on his tongue and feeling the wetness on his palate. The way she was rubbing his throbbing cock through the silky knickers also added to his awareness that he would very quickly be spurting if he didn't try his hardest to hold it back. He wanted to make this lovely feeling last as long as possible, and he knew that when he had spurted it would be so wonderful for a few seconds and then he would be cleansed and be left on his own. He wanted to be hard, wanted to keep tasting this lovely woman, wanted this feeling to be with him for ever and ever, even though he knew this was impossible and he would not be able to resist coming-off for very much longer.

He moved his face forward carefully, driving his tongue along the wet groove, he had to keep swallowing to get his breath, and with every deep swallow so the slicky dampness of her flesh became more strongly odorized, a feminine smell that made him want to inhale all the more urgently.

"Put your hands up to me," he heard her urging him, "use your thumbs on either side of my cunt, my little pet, and open me up. Push the skin outwards to make the hole larger for your lovely mouth.”

She lifted her buttocks slightly to allow his hands to slide up towards her gash. He was able to see her flowering out for him and the more pressure he applied with his thumbs the wider the sensuous cavity became. He did not believe it, he didn't know a woman looked like this, he had never imagined the most intimate part of the opposite sex was as wonderfully thrilling and exciting. The soft, glistening inner flesh held his wide-eyed gaze. It was so smooth, so velvety, pinkish and yet with a hue of scarlet about it, and a slow, very thin dribble of moisture showed on the thickish lips and ran on to the hair surrounding the enthralling opening to wet her thigh flesh. Sarah could tell what an erotic effect this close view of her vaginal area was having on the inexperienced youth. She knew the sight, the smell, the feel of her cunt in this state would have aroused a monk, let alone a naive boy from the orphanage.

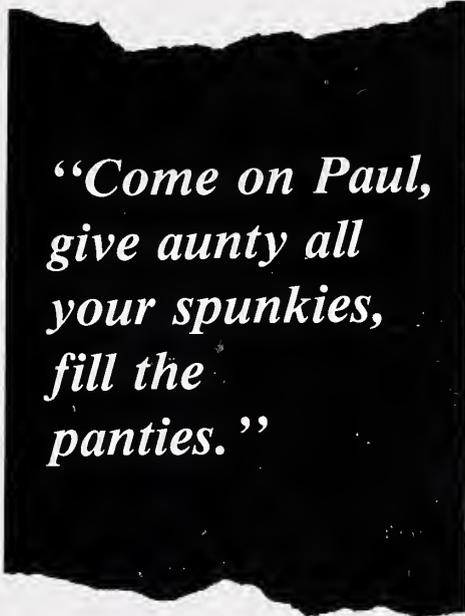

“Open your mouth wider, dear, and bring it o my cunt. Ohhhhh . . . my God . . . your tongue is delightful, so long my pet, stick it right up me. Ohhh . . . ohh . . . ohhhh . . . you are finding all the right spots my little darling. That's it, there . . . just there . . . you're licking close to my bud, can you feel it, a little bit of gristle. Lick it, lick it my pet, oohhaaamm . . . you're getting your lips all round the button. That's a woman's clitoris, Paul, and it is the most sensitive part of her cunt. Flick it, that's it, flick it with the tip of your wonderful tongue Paul.”

She gripped his cock with a savage clasp as her own excitement increased. It felt so good for her to have his virgin mouth and tongue licking and tasting her like this. He was literally devouring her cunt and was loving it as much as she was.

“You are doing it so good . . . oooooaaa . . . so goooood!”

His lips rounded and fully covered the clasping opening as he thrust his tongue as deeply into the hot hole as he could. He did not have the experience, or the patience to concentrate on her clitoris, which was now swelling from a tiny bud to a pronounced stubby growth of throbbing womanhood. Her fleshy thighs were convulsing on either side of his head, compressing him until he feared she was going to squash his skull. He could feel the warm palpitating walls of her vagina dilating and closing in hungry sucking motions on his tongue as if to encourage him to *“Come on Paul, give aunty all your spunkies, fill the

get his whole face, and not only his tongue inside her.

“You love Aunty's pussy don't you, Paul?” She knew he could not answer in words, not with his mouth full of cunt-flesh, but from the way he tried to nod and the muffled garbled words she knew he was desperately “in love” with her cunt. He was proving an apt pupil, just as she knew he would. She had waited a long time to find a suitable, docile, submissive lapper, and this good looking young man was the answer.

“Aunty is building up to her climax,” she gasped, as she writhed her buttocks and gripped him more tightly with her thighs. She rode his face, this way, that way, forward, back, and the natural reaction was for her to clasp his rigid cock all the more firmly and wank him in a fashion she knew would bring him off at the same time as his lips and tongue fetched to an orgasm her pulsating organ. He knew from the way she wanked him with those silky knickers he would have to oblige soon. There could be no holding back when she clasped him through the warm panties and massaged his foreskin to and fro with such frantic movements. It was when he felt the oily, slimed fluid dribbling down his throat his own climax began. He drank her sex liquid greedily now he was accustomed to the taste and smell of a mature woman in rut. She was gasping and breathing heavily, but she was not too breathless to urge him to spunk with words and phrases that she knew would incite him.

“Come on Paul, pet, give Aunty all your spunkies, fill the panties with your juice. Show Aunty what a big load you can produce. Good . . . goooood boy . . . goooood boy, you're drenching the knickers, drenching them with your lovely spunk. Just for Aunty isn't it, just for Aunty.”

They lay still, both of them breathless, flushed and satiated. She still held his cock firmly in the wet panties and slowly stroked his perspiring forehead. Then she got up and sat on the edge of his bed, just as she had when she first came into his room.

“Good boy Paul, you have been very nice to Aunty, you are good for her, and you liked the reward I gave you, didn't you, pet? Tell Aunty.”

“Mmmmm . . . yes . . . yes Aunty . . . I loved what we did.”

“You be nice to Aunty all the time and Aunty will make sure that Paulie is kept very happy all the time.”

He wasn't so naive now not to know what the woman meant and murmured his approval. He was sorry when she got up to leave his bedroom.

“Goodnight pet, sleep well, Paulie.”

He drifted into a sublime half sleep, licking his lips and savoring again the delicious taste of Mrs. Sarah Wilson's cummings which lingered in his mouth.

In the adjoining bedroom Sarah too drifted into a satisfied sleep, having enjoyed her first cuntlapping for many years, and happy she had won her young lover over to her strange way of love-making. He would use his sweet little mouth to service her needs, and she would use her panties to service his needs, altogether a most excellent arrangement, providing them both with pleasure and gratification.

April Ashley . . . she never had a beard . . . sigh . . .)

On the less painful side, I've been trying to go on a diet that would allow me to gain a little weight, hopefully most of it in the upper balcony.

In the first two days I ate like crazy and lost 1½ pounds. By the third day, though I have seemed to sufficiently intimidated my metabolism and began to gain a bit. I've made up the lost ground and gained another 1½ pounds and it has a positive effect on the breasts, I'm happy to say. (Even when I feel at my worst about being "in between" I get real pleasure from any improvement in my breasts . . . so go figure . . .)

Another item of cheer that made a glimmer in my recent bleak mood is the news that a paper is going to be presented at the upcoming Harry Benjamin Conference on Gender Dysphoria which will deal specifically with the "non-surgical" transsexual (Type 4 on the Benjamin Scale . . .).

This is a subject that has largely been overlooked or ignored in the past and indeed the feeling that we in that situation have often gotten from both gender programs and sometimes other transgendered people is that we are somehow not legitimate.

Well, the presentation of this paper won't change us much, but it may help establish our legitimacy in the eyes of the professional community we deal with and, believe me, that can't be bad!

In fact, this is exciting enough to me that I may try to make the trip to Bordeaux in France for the conference. (Of course the fact that I've wanted to visit England and France for years has a little to do with it . . .)

Sounds like a dream, doesn't it? It does to me too, but I'm going to have passport pictures shot today.

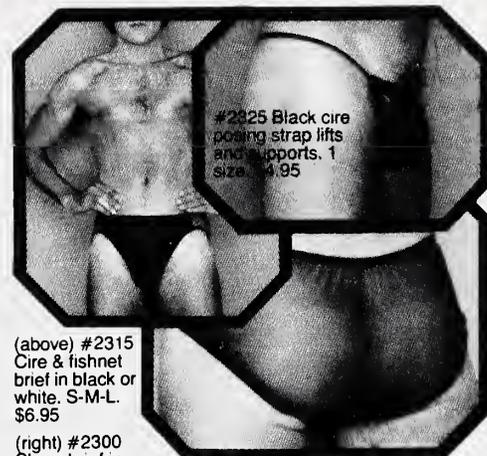

Whether I make it depends on a lot of things, but if I do, you'll read about the trip here first (and see the pictures, too.) So watch for #18 and see whether I made it!

A couple of people wrote to ask if my tape was still available since I didn't mention it in FMI #16.

There was a time, I understand when they sold out, but now it's back in stock, still for $9.95 which includes the hour tape on topics of interest to transgendered people plus a selection of my own favorite pictures over the years. Add a dollar for postage and packing and appropriate sales tax if you live in California and order from OZMA PRODUCTIONS, P.O. Box 23001, Oakland, CA 94623.
