The Original Magazine For Men Who Enjoy Dressing Like Women!

Editorial

Dear Readers,

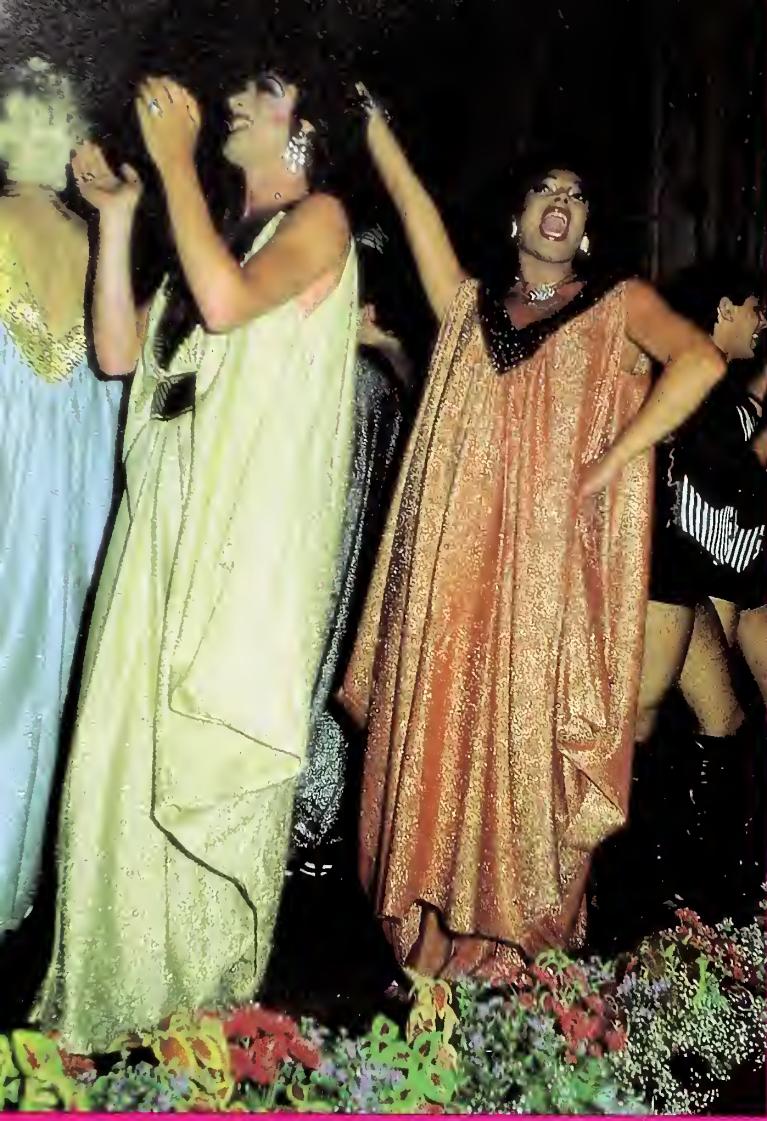

One of my personal favorite events is the King and Queen of the Universe Contest. The magnificent Le Rey always pulls together an evening of pure magic and glamour. I get a chance to see some old friends and foes. A good time is had by all. I have noticed after years of attending this event that more and more time and effort is put into the costumes and gowns. The expense must be staggering.

Also in this issue—Sulka gives birth! We are the lucky first to have stills from Sulka's latest film, a sequel to "Sulka's Wedding." You won't see these photos anywhere else for a while. We hold exclusive first rights. This might have something to do with the fact that this is a Kim Christy film. Thank you!

We hope you enjoy this issue as much as we enjoyed putting it together for you.

*Love Ya,
Kim Christy*

Letters to the Editor

If you wish to write to Kim and possibly have your correspondence published, please address it to Kim Christy, C/O FEMALE MIMICS INTERNATIONAL, P.O. BOX 1622, Studio City, CA 91604.

Dear Kim,

With encouragement from you after printing one of my letters last year I have taken the bold step of allowing another to see me dressed.

I had written about being married and unable to dress except when my wife was out. My dressing sessions were too short and I was afraid she would find me someday in her clothes. I answered an ad not long ago after taking out a P.O. box. I continued to send out letters to see if someone was willing to help me who wouldn't mind if I were still married.

Cathy is a 24 year old TV, about my age, who has been out of the closet since 18. We talked several times on the phone prior to our first meeting. She had her head together but it took me weeks before I relaxed.

Cathy measured me up and went out to pick out my first clothes. She is better than most women with makeup. I look pretty good now too. I have sent out the film from my first photo session as Dianne. Perhaps some might come your way.

I usually manage at least 2 meetings a week with Cathy now. My wife thinks I'm "out with the guys."

Since coming out I have grown very close to Cathy and though I am still married, my wife is never sexually active and I have grown apart in that part of our lives. We are friends, but we are two very different people. The marriage makes it financially easier to live, but that is about it.

I know if my marriage ever should end, Cathy and I will live together. She has assured me I would be welcome, but she is not urging a separation.

Only time will tell, but I can tell you this, when I am Dianne those are the happiest times of my life now.

Thanks for everything.

Sincerely,
Dianne

Dear Dianne,

Congratulations. We are always pleased when someone meets Mr. Right, Ms. Right, or Mrs. Right. It's alright as far as I'm concerned. Best of luck.

Love ya,
K.C.

Dear Kim,

I just received a copy of the "New Look" of F.M.I. I have to write and tell you it is very beautifully done. The photography is exquisite. Your models are some of the most beautiful I have ever seen. I would love to meet them, and you—Kim. You are gorgeous!

I am a transvestite, and I love it! I have been one for years, but have not "come out" until the last 3 years. The only thing that bothers me is that I can't wear feminine attire all the time. Very few people know of my TVism, and other people I know wouldn't understand. Like most of society, we are not accepted, or understood. Someday we might be. With the help of your beautiful magazine, and excellent articles, photos, and the personal letters and contacts—it might happen someday. I hope and pray it does. We are the "Beautiful People!"

I have a few questions, Kim. I hope you can answer them. One is: who is the model used in the Ludmilla article? She's one beautiful woman, whoever she is!

And the photos, and article of Linda Lee. She is a knockout! I love the satin and lace negligee set she has on in the full-length color photo in the back of the magazine. Where did she get that? I would love to have one just like it. Or her! Both!

I live in New Hampshire and up here I do not get a chance to see these magazines, or others, anywhere. I have to send for them. I would love to be on your mailing list so I can receive F.M.I., ASAP. So would you please put me on your list? Thank you.

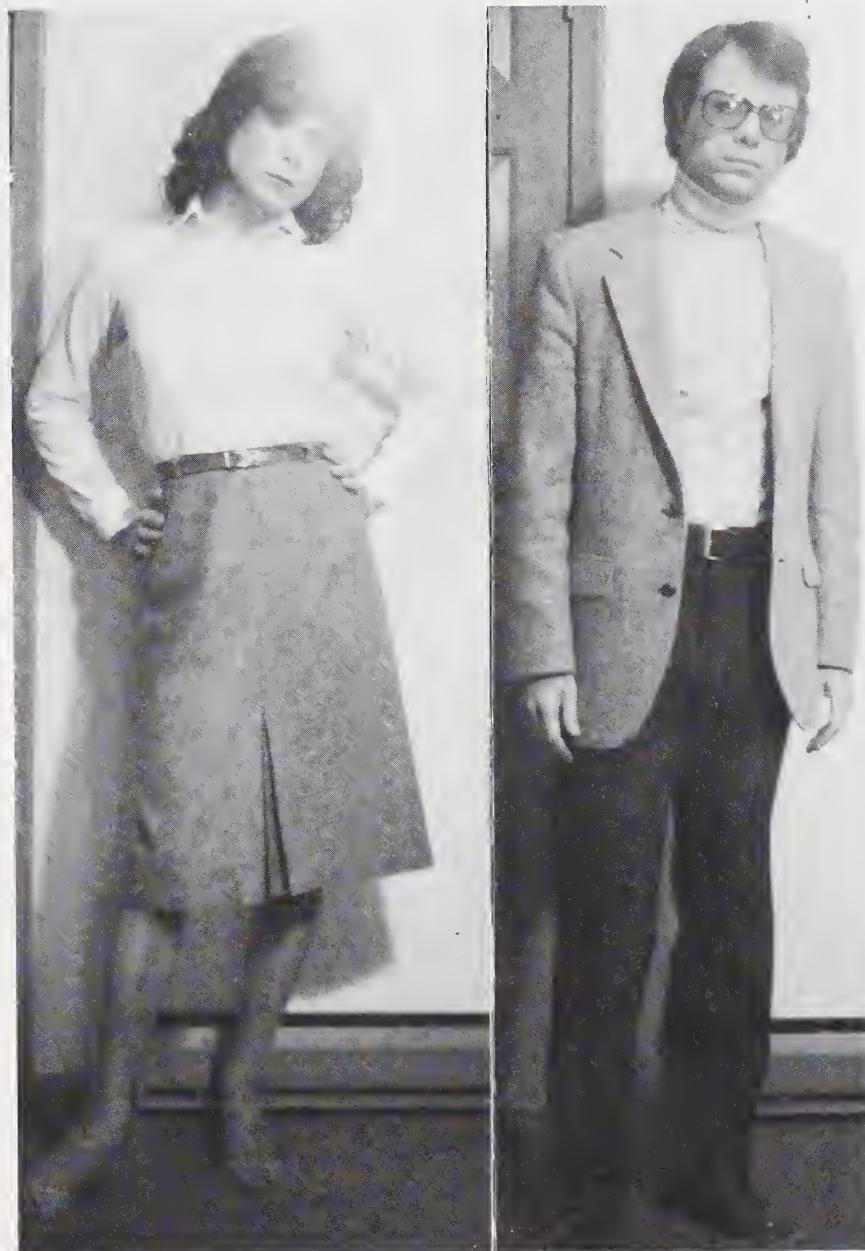

There aren't too many TVs in N.H. either. I know of one, that I have met and we talked, and dressed for each other, and also had an excellent time together!

I love your photo layout of Heather and Ivory. They look fantastic! I wish I had a body like they do! Notorious Nora, Sensational Suzanne and Sensuous Sulka, all of them, Beautiful! To look like some of them is my ultimate fantasy! And to meet some of them is another fantasy of mine.

You see, Kim, I am married, and my wife understands and supports my TVism and other fantasies of mine. She knows the only time I feel completely relaxed and honest with her and myself is when I am dressed as my female self. That's when I feel I am being the real me! I always sleep in a nightgown, and wear panties and pantyhose under my male clothes all the time. When I am at home I dress as my female self.

I have not gone out in public dressed as my better half as yet, but with the help of your magazine, and its stories from other TVs, my courage is building up more and more everyday to do it. So, keep up the excellent work, Kim. Your magazine will also help to bring out more of us, and to help the so-called "normal people" understand and accept us. We will be someday, and a lot of thanks will go to YOU!

So, I'll wait for your next issue of F.M.I. and hope I can get a copy.

See you soon,
Sincerely
One of the Beautiful People,
Love in Lingerie,
Tara

Dear Kim,

Very shortly, I will be sending you a photo-anthology of myself as a woman, which I hope will merit publishing. As you can see from the enclosed photos, I am believable as a man and woman, and within the next year will begin living as a girl, full time.

I have been on hormones intermittently for three years, and my proportions have taken on a delightful feminine quality.

I am sure when you see the photos I am preparing, you may wish to dedicate an entire page to them, at which point please feel free to contact me so that I may add, if you wish, editorial comments. In the past I have written feature stories for The Transvestian (tabloid) on the East Coast.

Best of continued luck. I love your new graphic format/image.

Sincerely,
Lorraine

Dear Lorraine,

Well, we certainly appreciate your time in coming up with this wonderful expression of dual personalities.

Thank you,
K.C.

Dear Kim,

The very first TV magazine I ever bought was about you, and I thought you were one of the loveliest and most sensual creatures I had ever seen. As a matter of fact, even after all these years I still get excited when I open it and see your pictures. You are truly a very beautiful female, and have always been the standard by which I judge other female impersonators and TVs.

I would like to commend you and your staff on the superb quality and professional format of your magazine. It is a very positive approach to bringing an image of respectability to the transvestite and transsexual lifestyle. Your tasteful and stylish presentation of very beautiful models goes far in removing the stigma of being freaks from TVs and TSs. It demonstrates that TVs and TSs are intelligent and forthright people, with the courage to pursue a lifestyle they believe in regardless of social sanctions and inhibitions. Thanks to you—and many other brave people like you—it is becoming easier for the rest of our culture to be able to pursue our chosen lifestyle.

I have one request to make of you, and it may serve to stimulate and aid those people who use the classified ad section of your magazine to contact those people who place the ads. Please list a state, or the area of a state, or even a geographical area in the ads. It will be of great assistance to those of us who are somewhat limited in our ability to travel, and who must search for people in a close proximity to our homes when making contacts and arranging meetings. If the person who places the ad fails to mention it in the ad, perhaps you could place it in there for them. It would mean more responses for the person placing the ad, and would assist the reader in determining whom they could write to and arrange to meet.

Keep up the good work, and, thanks again for being the Voice which speaks for all of us.

Your truest admirer,

Allyn

Dear Kim,

My female name is Donna. I am a white STRICTLY HETERO male TV lesbian. Deep devout sweater, fur (if I could afford one), sure silk chiffon silk and polyester-blend scarf, long-sleeve see-through and semi-see-through blouse and heavy exotic makeup, especially lipstick girl.

Age: 35, Height: 5 ft, 7 in. and weigh 130 lbs; hair: dark auburn, eyes: blue, complexion: fair, vitals 36DD-26-36.

I have been looking very hard for an organization or group strictly catered to hetero TVs, full or partial TSs and gay BIs and straight women only, but, to absolutely no avail.

I've gone to lesbian bars, but never go past the front door. I want them, but they don't want me.

I love dressing as a woman so much that I don't buy female clothing from shops that cater to girls like me. Could you or would you help me?

I have an idea that would be, at least I think, very beneficial to all concerned.

Why don't you print in the back of different issues or publish a separate issue that has the following:

1—Names, addresses and possible phone numbers of every group and organization that caters to every aspect of our lifestyle.

2—Clothing stores for every clothing fetish no matter what the fetish and desire, especially if they have try-on booths even if it's a woman's store.

3—Medical information, very carefully screened to stop the con artists or the ones just in it for the money.

4—Legal and job hunting services.

5—Hospitals and clinics that are very carefully screened as in No. 3 for those that desire sex change whether it be full or partial.

I live near and work in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania and there is nothing here and if there is, they're few and far between. Searching for what I've just mentioned can be, and is, very frustrating and very embarrassing, to say the least.

I would love to be the driving force behind this publication and seeing that it gets published.

This is very important to me and I dearly hope I see my dream girl come true.

Please let me know as soon as possible as to what becomes of it.

I do love your magazine,
Sincerely yours,

Dick Smith
(Donna)

Dear Donna,

My, but aren't we an enterprising "girl". Well, I tell you it all sounds great so why don't we run it up the "flag pole" and see what happens. The response from our readers should let us know if the research it will take is worth it. Thank you for a clever idea.

K.C.

Trained By Aunty

"Glad to be home with aunty agian, my pet?"

She was cuddling him as if he were a dolly. "Oh yes, yes I am, aunty," he replied honestly.

They lay quietly and happily together, letting the soft music relax them. The orphaned youth was indeed very happy to be again in the comfort of a home and especially as it was with such a wonderfully desirable "aunty." In the Centre he had to comply with very strict discipline; here with aunty he did what he enjoyed doing with no one to interfere.

She gently moved his head downward from her shoulder to her breast, and once there maneuvered his head so that his mouth was resting against her large breast. She quietly opened her blouse and unclipped her bra so that her globe was exposed, and he found his mouth in direct line with her stubby nipple. He felt his lips being gently but firmly opened by her fingers, and then her erect nipple was being inserted into his mouth. Immediately and instinctively he began to suck on the proffered teat, and Sarah's reaction was to press his head firmly to her breast so that the swollen teat remained well and truly in his mouth. With her other hand she lovingly stroked his head and at the same time murmured her approval of what he was doing.

Paul closed his eyes and lay passively cacooned in her large arms, seeking to nestle closer and closer to her ample bosom. The way he continued to suckle at her large tittie was a good sign for her. He had been orphaned at an early age and could not remember ever being cradled by his mother or any other relation and he felt surprisingly elated lying so quietly and passively in this woman's arms and having her teat to suck on. It was a new experience for him, a wonderful sunsation he wanted to continue.

"There's aunty's little baby girl," Sarah smiled down at him and spoke in a soft, reassuring tone. "You relax and let aunty soothe you and look after you. You are aunty's little baby girl, aren't you?"

He suckled away, gurgling happily. She went on, "Little Paulie was all tense and frustrated after whole week away from aunty's arms, wasn't she, eh? But then aunty's pink panties, the very pretty pink nylon panties did their work, didn't they, dear? The knicks took away all Paulie's nasty tensions, didn't they?"

Paul nodded; he was mystified why she kept calling him a girl, but he didn't really mind, not as long as he was with her and enjoying himself as he was at this moment with this teat, which seemed to be getting larger and more rubbery all the time, in his mouth. He nodded, but not for a moment did he let go of this hot precious bud of flesh from his lips.

The misty-eyed woman looked down at this slim young man in her arms and was happy to observe that he had gotten an unmistakable erection from her motherly manner. She stopped smoothing his forehead and lowered her hand to his crotch and gently pressed his cock through his trousers, and all the time her other hand kept his face compressed against her fleshy breast.

"I've been talking about pretty pink panties and my Paulie has got herself all excited again. you love my panties, don't you, Paulie?"

She slowly undid his zipper and allowed his youthful cock to spring free. "My, my, just look at that," she playfully chided him, "I think Paulie would like to feel aunty's panties again, eh? Is that what Paulie wants?"

He could only nod and mumble. Soft moans came from him as he felt his cock getting harder and more sensitive as he thought of the touch of soft, silky nylon panties caressing his prick again.

She reached under the cushion on the sofa and extracted a pair of white nylon panties she had placed there before they had sat down, and then she wrapped the smooth fabric around his member, dragging more moans and gasps of pleasure from him.

His eyes widened in wild admiration at the hairy treasure being exposed.

"Nice panties . . . nice, lovely, soft, silkny panties," she whispered into his ear as she began to lightly stroke his knickered tool. She didn't give him a proper wanking because she wanted to tantalize him and build up his excitement and desire, and she wanted to instill in his mind the idea that he could only get such wonderful satisfaction from being in contact with her panties, and he could only "cum" if panties were involved, and also that these wonderful felings had to be earned by doing exactly what aunty wanted.

"Nice . . . smoth . . . soft panties," she went on speaking intimately, "silky . . . soft . . . panties . . . lovely panties . . . oh such lovely sikly panties . . . silky panties." Her voice was hypnotic, droning into his ear. "Paulie loves aunty's panties. Paulie needs aunty's knickers. Paulie must have aunty's panties. Paulie loves aunty's panties."

She pulled her breast away from his mouth. Very reluctantly he let go of the lovely nipple with his lips as she got up fromt he sofa and slowly lowered his body so that he was lying full length along the sofa with is head resting on the cushion where she had been sitting. All the time she kept up her soft chant until he too took up the phrases. Together they were mumbling "Paulie loves aunty's panties. Paulie needs aunty's knickers. Paulie loves aunty's panties.' She knew he was under her spell, and she knew from this behavior that by the end of this second weekend with her he would depend totally on contact with her knickers for his sexual satisfaction. She shuffled forward so that she was standing by his head, facing him.

"Open your eyes, darling, my pet; look at aunty."

Paul blinked his eyes open and looked up at her smiling down at him. Then he brought his gaze downwards, past the pink blouse she wore, past the black skirt, lower until his eyes rested on her attractive thighs encased in black nylon stockings. She was holding her skirt up for him to get a better view of the tops of her legs.

Her eyes narrowed slightly as she spoke. "Paulie want nice little wankie?"

"Oh, yes, please, aunty, please." His voice was more than a little tremulous.

"First, take my panties down for me, please, pet," she told him, and stood still whilst his hands reached up under her skirt to start fumbling for her knickers. Before he started to pull them down he gazed longingly at the black nylon panties covering her lovely secret place, and then at her black stockings, and finally at the taut straps of her suspenders. She allowed him as long as he wanted to gaze at her underwear. She knew soonhe would be as much in love with her knickers, stockings and suspender belt as he was with her body.

"You adore looking at aunty's stock- ing tops, don't you, Paulie, and isn't my suspender belt nice to see at such close range eh? Now take aunty's panties down for her, there's a good Paulie."

His hand visibly shook as he slowly lowered her knickers. His eyes widened in wild admiration at the hairy treasure being exposed as he brought the nylon knickers farther and farther down her thighs. Now he could clearly detect her feminine scent and he was at once reminded of the first exciting weekend he had spent with Mrs. Sarah Wilson and his introduction to the female body.

He loved the feel of the nylon in his hands. So soft, so warm, so utterly feminine. He had them low enough for her to step out of them and she let her skirt fall back into place. Paul gripped the still very warm knickers in both hands and held them in front of his face. They looked so pretty and felt so good to handle as he smelled the ultrafeminine aroma that lingered so strongly in them. He felt his erection growing stronger when he thought where the panties he was holding had been just a few seconds ago!

"Another pair of lovely panties for Paulie," she teased him, "this time a pair of knickers I have been wearing all day. They are much more exciting, aren't they, Paulie?"

Her tone as well as the knickers were seducing him. He was totally aroused at her words and almost as a reflex action he brought the panties against his face and allowed the so-smooth material to glide across his cheeks. He sighed loudly and then lifted the panties so that the crotch-band was immediately beneath his nostrils. After inhaling deeply several times he parted his lips and began ardently sucking on the cunt-scented crotchpiece.

"That's it, my darling," she encouraged him, "a nice pair of aunty's panties around you cock and another pair of aunty's panties to suck. You love aunty's knickers, don't you, my pet." She took hold of his hands and brought them away from his face so that the knickers remained resting over his nose, mouth and chin, the crotch-piece yeilding its fragrant pungent smell into his open mouth. She guided his hands under her skirt and up to her rapidly moistening cunt. He at once began to frig that soft hair-lined fleshy hole as if directed by instinct. She watched him. This was was so good, so gratifying, to see the youth responding in this way. The faster he frigged her the more deeply he inhaled and sucked on the panty crotch band in his mouth. She reached down and began to wank him, this time with urgent, hard, downward pushes and rapid-upward pulls of her fist. His cock, wrapped in the soft nylon of the panties, responded into the more massive erection he had known.

"Good, that's good, my pet; you understand that aunty knows what Sarah was a woman whose genitals quickly moistened and gave a tangy offering.

Paulie wants and needs. Paulie needs pretty panties, aunty's panties, on his face and on his cock, and he loves to play with aunty's cunt while she gives him lovely wankies."

There was no doubt Sarah was getting just as big a thrill from this activity as was her protege, and she could hold herself back no longer. She climbed onto the sofa so that she was straddling him with her knees on either side of his head and facing his feet. She transferred his hands from her cunt to her breasts, where her large nipples were becoming more and more upright and firm with the passing moments, and then she very slowly lowered her hips until her warm cunt flesh was just an inch above his face. The young man's features were still covered by the black nylon panties and so he wasn't aware that she was kneeling above him. However, nothing could disguise the musky feminine-sex odor that assailed his nostrils, and naturally this scent acted as a most powerful aphrodisiac on his senses.

Sarah gradually removed the panty crotch-band from his mouth and lowered her hips farther so that her cunt actually rested on her lips. He realized what was happening and eagerly began lapping her moist pungent flesh. Sarah was a woman whose genitals quickly moistened and gave a copious offering of tangy mucous as soon as she was aroused. It was this slightly-oily, slightly-acidic, slightly-spicy juice that Paul was so greedily sucking and swallowing as soon as he discovered her membraned vaginal lips were within range of his tongue. With his hands clasping her breasts, fingers tweaking her nipples he worked her teats in tempo to the lust-inciting tonguing he was giving her. He was what she would have described as a "natural." Passive, docile and a cunt and knicker worshipper, the youth she had taken under her wing at the orphanage was now providing her with pleasures she had only dreamt about and as she revelled in her contorting ecstasies she adjusted her timing so that she was wanking his horny cock with both hands in a tempo of the same urgency as his breast massaging and cunt lapping.

How lucky she was to have selected Paul for her special "home training" at weekends. To think a few weeks ago they had hardly spoken to one another, and now he was responding so wonderfully to her clever training, and enjoying every minute of it. He was without doubt going to become addicted to her strange lovemaking which made the male's pleasures revolve around feminine clothing and in particular her knickers.

"Aunty's panties and aunty's cunt . . . my panties and my cunt . . . now my darling Paulie has everything he needs to make him happy and contented hasn't he?" She tried to speak softly and coaxingly, but her own randy feelings made her voice shirrl. The phrases designed to incite him to further abandonment had a similar effect on her as well. "Panties . . . cunt . . . aunty's cunt and aunty's knickers . . . panties and cunt . . . cunt and panties." She kept up her verbal excitation while she worked on his upthrust, knicker-encased cock with both hands, and timed matters so that they would both climax at the same moment. Paul lay beneath her revelling in the silky friction on his penis and sucking at her very damp, elongated lips of cuntflesh as if his very life depended on his bringing her to orgasm. The nectar was plentiful from that wonderful open gash, and he greedily swallowed the slimed cummings, hoping the flood would never dry up.

Linda Lee's Pages

Well everybody, it actually happened! I've just returned from London, Paris, Bordeaux, Llandudno, and other places in France and the British Isles.

So . . . for the next couple of issues I'll be talking mostly about the trip, but I'll set aside a bit of space at the end of my columns to mention items of news or special interest.

The main purpose of the trip, as those of you who are regular readers know, was to attend the 8th International Symposium on Gender Dysphoria of the Harry Benjamin Association. This was held in Bordeaux, France from September 16th to the 19th of 1983. (The Symposium, so far, has only been held every two years.)

However, I did lots besides this, as well, and I have every intention of talking about those things too!

In fact this first part of my report will only deal with topics related to transgender concerns here and there. Most of it will be about other things altogether. The information that does relate to transgender issues is important and that helps justify taking space for the other material, but there's something else, too.

To be of real value these columns have to do a little more than give an idea of current events relating to gender. They have to give you all some sense of the kind of person I am. Otherwise you won't know whether I see things "your way" or whether, as far as your viewpoint is concerned, my columns make great fish-wrapping paper. So . . . that's how I justify taking these pages this time more for a view of things that excited me on this trip, and less for gender issues alone. And if you don't agree with me on this, Tough Toenails! (How's that for a rational, balanced viewpoint, kids!)

Probably the most remarkable thing about the trip was that it didn't even exist as an idea until about ten or twelve days before it happened.

I had been talking to my own therapist, Lin Fraser, about the upcoming conference. She couldn't go this year and we had looked over the program and talked over presentations that sounded particularly interesting.

As I left the office I was thinking "I'd really like to attend that meeting. Of course I could . . . no . . . there's no way I could have everything together in time to leave."

Out of this grew a slightly crazy idea. I'd start getting ready to go, not with the idea that I'd actually make the trip, but with the idea that I'd see how far I could get before I ran into insurmountable snags. In a sense I approached it almost like a game. (See how far across the river I can get before an alligator gets me, to draw an analogy from Frogger, the only video game I've ever played . . .)

One of the things that led me to approach the whole undertaking with a sort of cheery pessimism was that friends who travelled told me that I'd never get a passport in time. It would take two or three weeks, I heard.

Fortunately, from a planned trip to South America that never materialized, I still had a copy of my birth certificate, that is, the legal one that registered my birth with the county of Los Angeles, not the little momento the hospital gave my mother, presumably to prove I really was hers, should she try to take me back to trade in on a different model at some later date . . .

Armed with this plus the requisite pictures, plus the fee I went over to the U.S. Passport Agency office in San Francisco.

I have a theory why it went so smoothly. I think it was the contrast.

The people ahead of me included several who spoke practically no English, and at least one or two who apparently spoke languages totally unfamiliar to the staff at the Passport Agency.

One man was obtaining passports for his entire family which, to judge by the amount of paperwork he had, seemed to number something over the average soccer team, reserves included. Or perhaps he was sending a circus on tour or something . . .

The lady ahead of me was trying to explain to the Passport official that she really had been born, but that her birth certificate had been destroyed in some great natural disaster, possibly the 1906 earthquake.

Over to one side a young man was trying to convince an official that his arrest record was, after all, a trivial matter.

Join Linda Lee in Europe as she attends the 8th International Symposium on Gender Dysphoria of the Harry Benjamin Association.

Amid all this an application by someone with all the right papers and no special requests was bound to be greeted warmly, and so it was.

The passport officer did not quite kiss me on both cheeks, in the manner of a French President bestowing a decoration, but he did positively beam at me and said that if the passport wasn't in my hands within a week to call back so he could check on it.

Actually, the passport was in my hands in three days and that included the time it took to mail it to me.

I should try to explain here that I did not try to travel with a female passport. As a matter of fact I thought, at that time, that it was impossible to get one unless the applicant was post-surgical.

I found out later that this wasn't quite true. It is possible to get a passport in the gender of choice before surgery under special circumstances.

Since this may be news to some readers as it was to me, I'll go over the procedure. First, of course, one needs to present a reasonable appearance. Actually no one told me this, but it seems only common sense that, if one is going to try to convince Federal officials of one's serious intent for gender reassignment, one ought to look as though it might be a reasonable expectation.

The second requirement is evidence of a legal name change. Apparently merely changing by usage isn't enough. One must have gone through the courts. (This doesn't apply, by the way, to "gender ambiguous" names like Robin, but would if the middle name was "gender specific.")

One also needs a letter from one's doctor. In the case of a pre-surgical person this would be one's endocrinologist, or possibly the prospective surgeon. The letter simply states that one is going through gender shift and that surgery is planned. (The feeling I got about this was that the more imminent the surgery, the easier the process became . . .)

Finally, any additional documentation will help. Perhaps a letter from one's psychologist would carry the most weight.

As my friend Lucy (who did it) explained to me . . . "You go into the office and present the official with your application. That person will freak out and refer you to the director of the office. The director will be terribly disconcerted but, if you follow all the steps and have all your information, you will eventually get a passport. It took me two weeks and about five trips down there, but then, I didn't know what I needed when I started out . . ."

So, it is possible, but it wasn't possible for me even if I'd known because I didn't have two weeks to spend getting things in order and I don't have a legal name change since I discovered a few years ago that my given first name can be used for either gender. Eventually I may want to change my firmly masculine middle name, but I haven't yet. I simply don't use it.

Once the passport seemed a possibility, I ventured down to a travel agency. I'd dealt with them before on my cross-country trip of some years before and knew them to be helpful people who could steer me to transportation that would fit into my budget.

We sat down amid seemingly endless brochures and eventually came up with a package that seemed more or less within reason. The flight was a charter which got me a good price and was on World Airways which was handy as their headquarters are in Oakland, which meant saving an hour or so over driving to the San Francisco airport. This may not seem like much, but can be a blessing when one is on a dead run and plane time is rapidly approaching.

I'd discovered that, within two days after the end of the Harry Benjamin Symposium, there was a convention in Wales of the International Brotherhood of Magicians British Ring. Magic has been a longtime interest of mine, as I may have mentioned before, and the discovery of this felicitous timing of events was one of the things that pushed me to go ahead and attempt the trip.

The charter company had planes that left and returned at the approximate dates I needed. I had to be back by the 25th as I had a magic show booked that I hadn't been able to get out of. I'd tried to talk the bookers into replacing me with someone else, but they hadn't wanted to, which was very flattering in its own way.

By now, what had begun as speculation was rapidly approaching reality. I have to admit I was increasingly nervous as everything fell neatly into place for the trip. After all, I'd never been out of this country before, saving brief excursions into Mexico and Canada, and about half the time I'd be in a country where English wasn't the first language.

In Mexico I at least had my high-school Spanish to draw from (the amazing thing was how quickly it came back) and could understand and make myself understood at a simple level.

With that in mind I bought a number of books on French, including one called FRENCH IN TEN MINUTES A DAY. After spending some time working with it, I decided the title meant ten minutes a day for twenty-three years.

My ear for languages has always been pretty good. It's not the pronunciation that's the problem, but the grammar. In fact, if I'm around someone with an accent I'll very often start picking it up without even realizing it. Occasionally I have to reassure people I'm not making fun of their speech. It's just a case of in the ear and out the mouth.

But that doesn't help much with the mechanics of the language.

Then I had a great piece of luck. Lin Fraser had just come in touch with an organization in Paris, Centre du Christ Libérateur, and its founder, Pastor Joseph Douce.

From what I gathered reading over their literature, the CCL is in many ways very much like Pacific Center here in Berkeley. Its aim is service to the sexual minorities and that includes concern not only for a person's spiritual needs, but for psychological and social needs as well. Pastor Douce is, in fact, a psychologist as well as being an ordained minister.

What is more, Pastor Douce speaks six languages fluently and one of them is English! After hearing this I wrote at once to Pastor Douce to let him know I was coming to Paris and to ask his help. I knew he was planning to go to Bordeaux because he had mentioned this in a letter to Lin Fraser.

I gave the letter a week or so to reach Paris, then called. Pastor Douce was very gracious. Yes, he said, he had gotten the letter and would be very happy for me to join him on the trip down to Bordeaux. He also told me of some CCL events which he thought might be of interest to me including a meeting of the TV/TS group which would take place two days before the trip down to Bordeaux.

Unfortunately, he said, he wouldn't be in Paris the day I arrived. He was going to the Netherlands with a TS from the group who was going for her surgery. (Since gender reassignment surgery is still illegal in France, most French TSs have their surgery in the Netherlands or in Belgium.) The person Pastor Douce was escorting is blind, so she needed special care and attention.

He would, he said, be back the next evening, when there was to be an open meeting at CCL including a meal to which everyone was invited. There probably wouldn't be many from the gender group there, but I was more than welcome to attend, he assured me.

All this was more than I could have hoped for, so I thanked the Pastor and told him I would see him in Paris.

This got me over perhaps the biggest hurdle of the trip. I'm relatively sure I could have done it alone, but it was a much more comfortable feeling to know I would be travelling with someone who knew the language and customs of the country as well as speaking my language and knowing about transgendered people.

For one thing, I'd consulted with Georgia Saunders, founder of Golden Gate Gender Alliance and a very knowledgeable person about what's going on in the gender world, and she'd said that travelling cross-dressed in France was "bad news," because cross-dressing is illegal in France.

I had armed myself with both a note from Lin and a note from my endocrinologist saying that I wasn't doing this with mischievous intent and was no more than usually weird, but I was still apprehensive.

As far as London went, I had no qualms. I telephoned my friend Martin who I've mentioned in these pages before. He arranged a room at a small "bed and breakfast" hotel relatively near his office, so I was assured of reasonably inexpensive accommodations.

For land transportation I acquired both a French and British rail pass. I hadn't realized one could get them on a "country-by-country" basis before, though I'd known about Eurailpass for years. I made my only splurge on this purchase and got both passes in First Class. I knew I'd be doing a lot of travelling by train and figured I'd better make it as relaxing as possible.

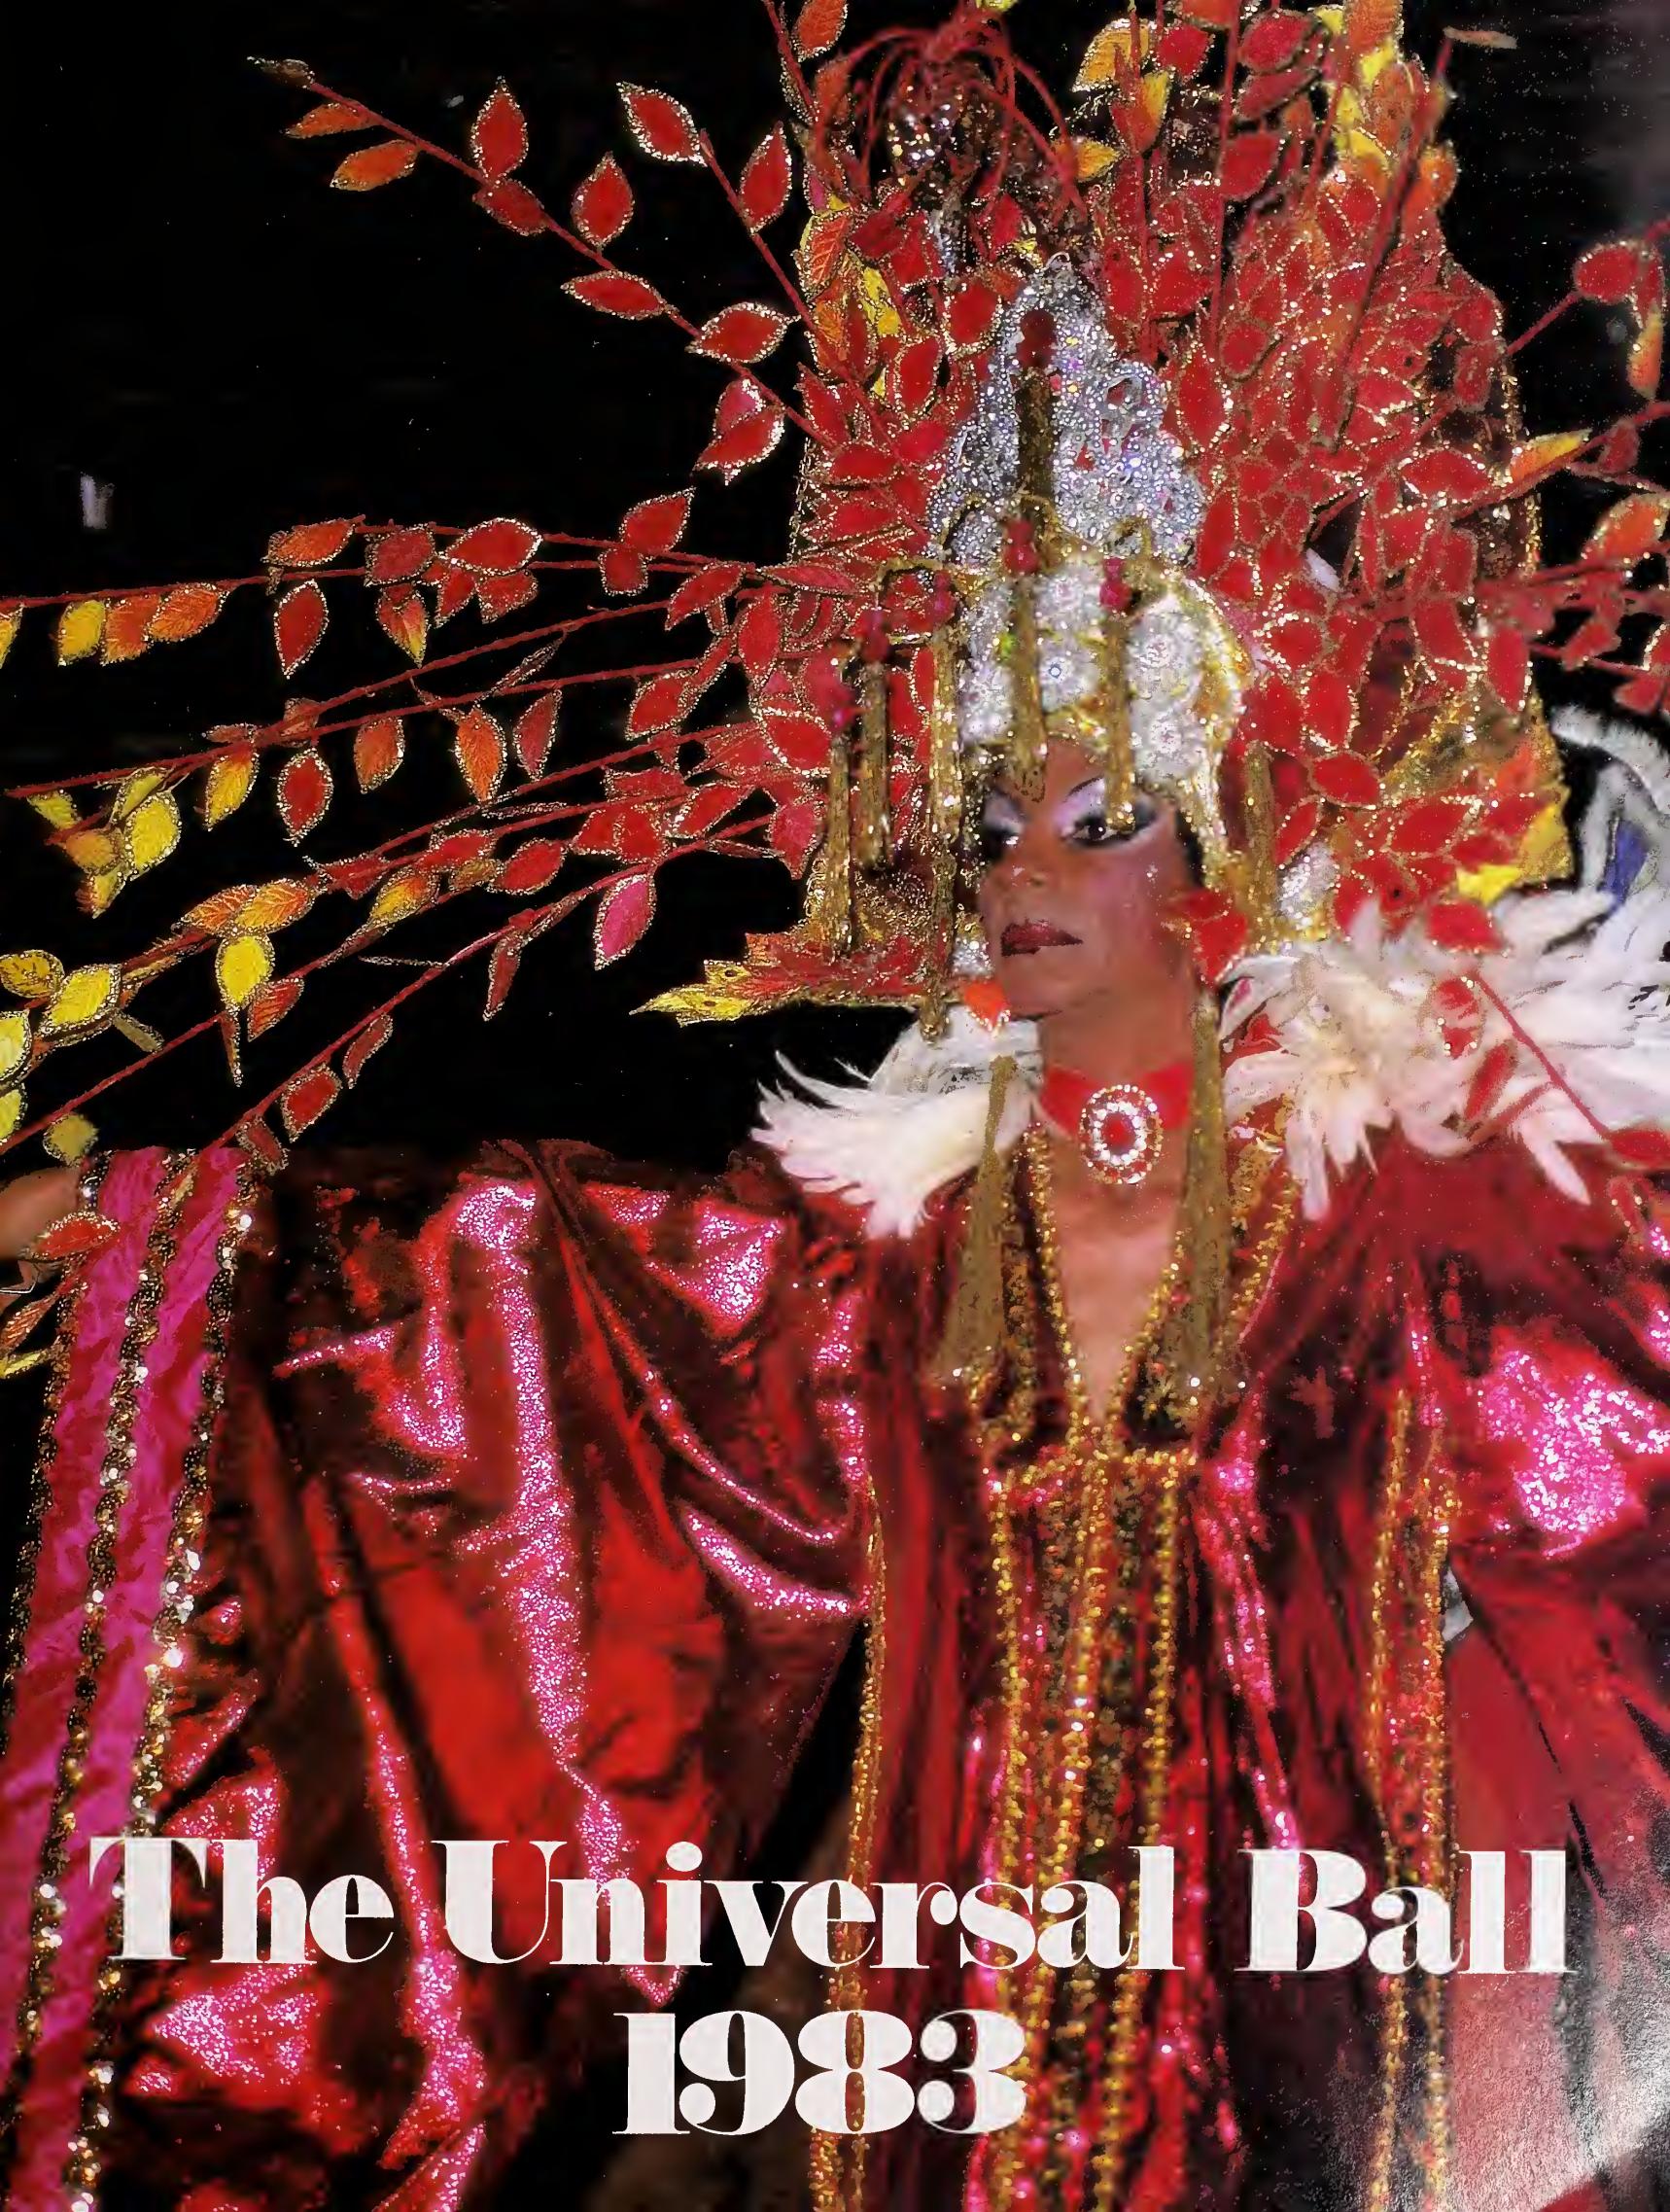

I was also able, as part of the rail pass, to take care of my Channel crossings.

As the day approached I started to figure out what to pack. For folks like us that can be a major undertaking! I tried to pick things that would all coordinate together so I'd have as many interchangeable outfits as possible.

I also acquired all the odds and ends that one needs such as voltage converters so that one's electrical appliances (hair dryer, clothes steamer, etc.) won't suddenly go "Blooey!" when confronted with the 220 volt current standard throughout most of Europe.

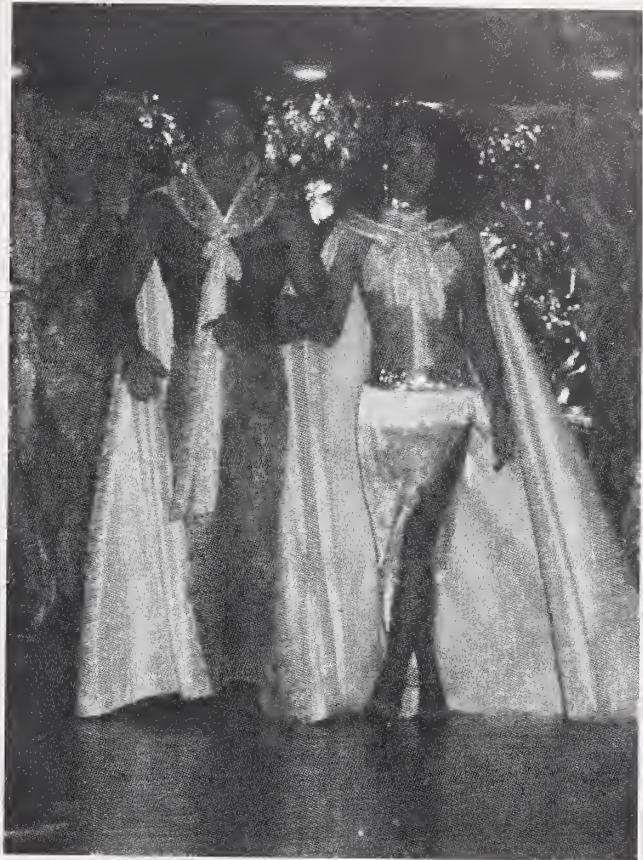

Even though I tried to keep things to a minimum, I still wound up with two good sized suitcases and a shoulder bag. It wasn't as light as I would have liked to travel, but at least I had the feeling I was ready for just about anything. In fairness to myself I should say that a reasonable amount of what I took was not clothes and that I wore virtually everything I did take at one time or another.

The Universal Ball 1983

LeRey does it again! This yearly event is the most lavish and lovingly put together ball, yet. At left: the fun never ends with the entertainment spectaculars. Above: The reigning King and Queen of the Universe step down from the throne. Below: The new King and Queen of the Universe are crowned.

A full-page photograph of a woman in a highly elaborate feathered costume. She wears a massive, multi-layered headdress composed of long, dark feathers, primarily black and dark brown, with some white ones interspersed. Her face is adorned with dramatic makeup, including dark eyeliner and bright red lips. She has a joyful expression, smiling broadly. Her attire includes a dark, sequined or metallic bodice with a large, ornate brooch at the center. A wide sash with the number "16" is tied around her waist. The skirt of her costume is voluminous, made of dark feathers and possibly some sheer material, creating a textured, layered effect. The background is dark and out of focus, making the bright feathers stand out.

an unequalled array of feathers and glitter. Far

Finally I seemed to have everything ready. I wasn't able to sleep much the night before which was probably all right as there were lots of last-minute things to be taken care of.

Morning came and I drove to the airport, clutching the steering wheel pretty hard, I imagine.

Flying has never been my favorite method of travel, but I'm realist enough to know that in cases like this it's the only practical one. I wouldn't go so far as to say I'm afraid to fly, but I freely admit that my hands get clammy, and I either grip the arm rests tightly or hold my hands in my lap in an attitude vaguely like prayer (mostly along the lines of "Don't let it fall down, I have an article due next Thursday . . .").

Actually, I relax quickly once I readjust to the basic idea of air travel, and by the second leg of the flight, which went from Baltimore to London, I was considerably less tense. It helped that the film on this flight was TOOTSIE which I was happy to see again.

We flew into the dawn somewhere over the Atlantic Ocean, then there up ahead was Ireland, proclaiming clearly why it was called "The Emerald Isle."

Then there was the larger island. The land of characters I'd lived with since I was a child. The home of Merlyn and Arthur, of Winnie-the-Pooh, of Mr. Toad, of Peter Pan.

The home, too, of the great historical figures I'd known for almost as long. The Henrys, the Richards, the Elizabeths, all the pageant of kings and queens, and the others like Thomas a Becket, George Fox (founder of the Quakers), and Sir Thomas More.

And perhaps most of all to me, land of my favorite authors whose insights and visions were formed by this place and who in turn shaped the visions of countless others who came after. What a flood of names and memories! Tolkein, C.S. Lewis, Wilde, Milne, Grahame, Noel

Coward, Agatha Christie, P.G. Wodehouse, Sayers, Arthur Conan Doyle, G.B. Shaw and two of my great loves, Dickens (Lawrence Olivier once remarked that actors should read Dickens because they would never be at a loss when confronted with a character. They could always say "This person is just like 'so-and-so' in Dickens.") and Shakespeare (One of my great sadnesses so far as a performer is that I haven't yet done a full-length Shakespeare play.)

And suddenly here I was, breathing the air and treading the ground where these people had been.

I came in at Gatwick and looked around for Martin. We found each other after some anxiety. Neither of us looked quite the same as we had a few years back when we first met.

The first thing that struck me driving out of Gatwick was how green everything was.

No wonder people could write in this place. I always find it easier to write if I can look out on something growing. Here it was practically overwhelming. Here, I felt, I could probably write three volume novels ". . . of more than usually revolting sentimentality."

The other things I noticed right away were the roofs. From the streets to the eaves many of the places we passed could have been transplanted to the U.S.A. and not looked out of place. But not the roofs. Tiled and gabled with chimneys and chimney pots, they smacked of The Old Curiosity Shop, and Fezziwig's Warehouse and coal fires and the "pea-soup fogs" of Sherlock Holmes' day.

It was the chimneys that told me I was really in London. And it was a feeling I'll remember as long as I live, no matter how often I go back.

Driving to London, we passed a church which seemed to have a memorial to Sir Thomas More. I hoped to find it again while I was there, but I never could.

My first evening was spent having a very pleasant dinner with Martin and his wife and some of their friends. After that I was pretty much on my own. I'd settled into my tiny hotel room and set out the next morning to explore London.

What I mostly explored was theatre. To anyone who loves theatre as I do, with a passion that has shaped my whole life, London must be as close to heaven as I'm likely to find down here.

With a copy of TIME OUT as my guide (I was dismayed to see that EVENT which I cited liberally a few columns ago has ceased publication. I trust there was no connection.) and a "London Explorer" pass to get me around on the busses and Underground I began to plan my days.

It was a little overwhelming. I figured it out, roughly, one evening riding back to Hammersmith in "The Tube." If I went to the theatre Monday-Friday (almost everything is "dark" on Sunday and I need one free day to myself, as well . . .) I could, counting the small stages and the large repertory companies which often have 6-7 shows running over a given few weeks, attend the theatre for about 5 or 6 weeks and not repeat a show.

What a wealth to choose from! But I only had three days! So . . . what to choose. There were certain "musts" and the first I tried for was THE MOUSETRAP. Being a life-long Agatha Christie fan (almost literally . . . my parents used to read them aloud to each other when I was still tiny . . .) I had always hoped to see this longest-running play of all time in London.

In fact though I have virtually ever Christie mystery, plus a good deal of other material by and about Dame Agatha, I had steadfastly refused to read "The Moustrap" (or "Three Blind Mice" to give the original story title . . .) until I saw the show in London.

On my first try, though, the show was sold out from early in the day so I decided to turn my attention that evening to the show everyone said I should try for, CATS.

I found the theatre about a half hour before curtain and discovered the play was sold out until December. There was a line of hopefuls waiting for cancellations and I would have joined them except I was sure there were more people waiting than there would possibly be cancellations. What to do.

I scanned the handy one-page theatre guide I'd picked up. "What the heck." I thought "Why not try it."

I cornered a cab letting some people with tickets off at CATS. "How long to get over to the National Theatre?" I asked.

"This time a'day . . . 'bout fifteen minutes."

"Let's go." I said, climbing in. And we did.

I got there about ten minutes before the curtain on INNER VOICES, a translation of Eduardo de Filippo's Italian play which starred Sir Ralph Richardson.

It was low priced previews. My seat cost something less than five dollars.

I'd read about de Filippo in Eric Bentley's books in college, but had never read, much less seen one. It was fascinating . . . reminiscent of the strange, slightly absurd world of Pirandello. But not only was the play a discovery, but the production was a chance to see one of the "Big Three" (Olivier, Gielgud, Richardson) on stage.

I'd never seen any of them except in film and it was gratifying to see Ralph Richardson take command of the stage and hold it until the end of the play. For anyone that is an achievement. For Richardson at 82 it was a wonder and a joy. He made it seem effortless even to me and I know it isn't. I'm glad I saw him this time. At 82, he must be close to retiring at least from the stage. I was very lucky.

The next show I saw was THE TEMPEST with Derek Jacobi as a younger, more vigorous Prospero than we are used to seeing. I've seen this play about six times in different productions. It's one of my favorite Shakespeare plays, but this was the most effective production, over all, of any that I'd seen, and the most satisfying production as a whole, that I saw on my trip. It captured more of the magic inherent in the text than any other TEMPEST I've encountered.

I did see MOUSETRAP, but didn't see CATS. When I couldn't get in to CATS, the night I went to stand in line hoping for returns, I just walked around the corner to see Sir John Mills in LITTLE LIES, an adaption of a Pinero farce. That's the joy of London theatre!

I did do other things in London, and I did go down to Kent to visit some dear friends who I'd known, until then, only through letters, and that's one of the great joys of a trip like this. Just the same, in London, it's the theatre that I'll remember.

* * *

That's only about the trip for this time. For one thing I'm nearly out of space. Next time I'll talk about things a bit more near and dear to the hearts of our readers like Le Carrousel, French lingerie, more on the CCL, and on to Bordeaux and the Symposium!

Before I close I want to say "Thank you." to those people who take the time to drop a line this way either with news or just to say they read this stuff. It's appreciated, believe me, and I've met some neat people that way (You know who I mean . . .).

I also want to alert readers in the San Francisco and Los Angeles areas and perhaps other places as well, to a play that's running near you. This is CLOUD 9 by Caryl Churchill and, besides being dazzling theatre, it is a deeply warm and touching piece. It made me feel better about being a human being than anything I've seen in a long time. The show is current in the Bay area and in Los Angeles and there may be other productions as well. Try and see if it's anywhere even slightly close.

Enough for now. Send for the tape. $9.95 plus $1.00 post and handling and appropriate sales tax if you're in California to OZMA PRODUCTIONS, P.O. Box 23001, Oakland, Ca 94623. It's an hour conversation with me (or as close as we could approximate since I'm the only one speaking) and a batch of my favorite pictures from over the years.

Really enough this time. More to follow. Watch this space.

Two entralling actions informed Sarah her young lapper was about to reach his climax: the absolutely feverish haste of movement of that tongue delving well between her spread cuntlips and the way his cock began to swell at the crown. The swelling was such that even through the silky panty material she was aware of it, and she knew she was bout to experience a mutual orgasm with him, but not in the normal way. His penis was not inside her, his tongue was. His penis was not getting stimulation from her vaginal muscles but from her hands. He was not going to be gazing into her face when he spent, but at her cunt; his spunk was not to be deposited inside her womb but caught in the folds of her silky panty crotch-band. Normal intercourse was not to be this young man's outlet, but her strange methods of giving him gratification were to become, very soon, accepted by him as the norm.

Paul was getting to the point of no return and she was well aware he would be spunking any moment. She writhed her well-opened gash down harder on to his face knowing that the little extra pressure of his tongue thrusting into her would also fetch her to the climax she wanted so badly. She was always very wet when being tongue-serviced but he would know when she came by the extra ultra-wetness and slightly more acidy taste of her nectar.

Then he was there . . . gasping . . . groaning . . . responding to her urgent wankings, he began to spurt into the soft panties she held so securely around his rearing cock. Into his mouth she spilled her own copious load, not as thick, of course, as his, but as wet and exciting to the taste. She continued to slowly rub him until she was certain he was drained, and it was his garbled moans and pleas for air that made her finally ease her cunt off his face. She had given him her sex nectar and had drawn his young manly juices from the reservoir contained in his young testicles. A fair exchange, and one giving them both gratification and a high degree of physical pleasure.
