Angels!

I'm floating on air for the moment as a result of a kind comment. A dear friend and I were having cocktails at the lovely Rose Tattoo in West Hollywood this afternoon and he referred to me, to our party as, "the Betty Page of Female Mimics."

Do any of you remember B.P.? She was the quintessential pin-up babe. She had a perfect and perky figure and an adorable face. She could transform from a demure sex-kitten to a black-booted bitch in the twinkling of an eye. She perfected the art of posing to a science, always displaying her body to its best and most luscious advantage.

To be compared to this fantasy-in-flesh was a boost to this old ego of mine. I used her so much for inspiration over the years. (We all have our role models!) I hope, too, that I have passed on some of the highly styled technique and attitude that Betty passed on to me.

*Love to you all,
K.C.*

Letters to the Editor

If you wish to write to Kim and possibly have your correspondence published, please address it to Kim Christy, C/O FEMALE MIMICS INTERNATIONAL, P.O. BOX 1622, Studio City, CA 91604.

Dear Kim,

I've just purchased my second Mimics Magazine (Annual Number 2) and I loved it. The pictures of you in "The Stiletto Siren" were beautiful. Boy, do I wish I could be one-half as passable as you.

I've been dressing up since I was about six years old. When I married I threw out my wardrobe and stopped dressing. However, as you well know the urge to dress was unbearable and within a year I was secretly cross-dressing.

About six years ago, I confessed to my wife that I enjoyed the feel of nylon and silk (this came as no shock to her) and then started wearing my elastic legged panties and pantyhose under my work clothes every day. My wife said she could live with this but she drew the line when I started wearing a pink nylon full slip to bed at night.

The only time I get to completely dress is on business trips, in my motel room. I usually plan trips where I can drive since the drive becomes a pleasure—I drive to my destination wearing panties, hose, slip and skirt. Your readers may be interested in how I do this. First, I get to work early in the morning. I have my special clothes at work, so I put on a nylon half slip under my clothes (I already have on my panties and pantyhose). I place the skirt I want to wear in my briefcase, the rest in my suitcase. Then it's off to a large mall where I remove my pants and slip into my skirt and shoes. The ride then becomes very enjoyable. I especially enjoy the glistening sight of the sun against my nylon clad legs. I remain in the right lane, do the speed limit, and make sure to pull my skirt down (to look like pants) when I have to pass a high tractor trailer. Before getting to my motel room, I find a mall and make the change back to my other clothes.

Kim, once I'm in my motel room my male clothes are off in a minute. I spend hours and hours in putting on different skirts, tops and lingerie. Although I'm no expert, I make up my face and do my nails as well as I can.

Since I'm afraid to appear in public, I spend all the time in the motel room enjoying my female attire.

Kim, I have enclosed some pictures I took on my last trip. It would give me great pleasure to have my letter/pictures published in your wonderful magazine. Keep up the excellent work!

Love always,
Cindy

Dear Kim,

FMI is superb. The latest issue featuring your new film with Carnal Candy—great! Will it be out as a videocassette soon?

I notice letters in FMI asking you to come out of retirement and show your stuff once again. I second the motion. You have the greatest legs of anyone—including real gals—I've ever seen.

How about a feature or a film with you, Candy, and a couple of chicks balling the night away?

There can't be too many hetero TV/TS films to suit my taste.

I love the contrast of hard cock with soft, feminized flesh, shapely legs, lacey bras, slips, big tits, all of the things that say "girl" except the "girl" is a "she-stud."

More hard-core TV books, films, videos, please! Oh, yes, how's your pal Chrysis doing these days? Love to see you two balling a pair of chicks!

Keep it cummin!
Donna

Dear Donna,

What an uninhibitedly appreciative letter!

Thanks,
K.C.

*To Kim,
Bought a new wig for a Rita Hayworth "look". Neat—huh?
Must do something about those transparent panties though!*

Dear Kim:

Hi, just a note to say thanks for reading this letter.

Your F.M.I. magazine is a labor of love and caring, a tasteful presentation of people who only too often are outcasts of society. I really love your columns and your Drag Do's & Don'ts. Some of my favorite issues of F.M.I. featured Margo & Lisa (#18) and Ball of VIP's #22

Well, you are certainly a beautiful and talented woman and if possible please send me an autographed photo. If your work is in the greater L.A. area, please tell me how I could see you in person.

I am a W/M, 34, 5'4" and 170 lbs. Well, that's not quite a woman's figure so I've stayed in the closet most of my life. I have been a TV since my teens and have found it to be the best! I am still looking for the right woman who can lead me into the more fulfillments of middle-aged womanhood at least on weekends.

Some of my experiences have included being an employee of a B&D Parlor, as a handyman, and staging, building the "TOYS," planning shows in exchange for my labors. I was allowed to exchange labor hours for sessions in light B&D and TV. Some of the working girls actually said they liked me more in my TV role, rather than the male that I was. But about 6 months ago, the L.A. County sheriffs raided the B&D

Parlor because some of the girls were "providing services for extra tips." But, that's another story! (Let me know if you want me to write the story for F.M.I.)

Well, I must be getting on with it. Please feel free to use this in Q&A (ok to rewrite). Please let me know where I might be able to get to see YOU, or where I might meet someone who shares the same interest. I am currently not gay, but I would like to meet a TS and learn how to share love and caring, to fulfill both a fantasy, love and desire of femme powers.

Love always,
M.B.

Dear M.B.:

What an exciting and varied life you've had. It sounds as if you could write a book. Because of my busy publishing and shooting schedule I rarely have time to meet and spend time with all the people who write. But who knows what fate has planned for us?

Love,
Kim

Dear Kim:

Your magazine is strictly tops! There is no comparing on any level, the so-called magazine on the market today. That is a simple fact. I wish you continued success for you are providing a service through your most informative magazine.

Please invite any of your readers interested in forming a serious TV/TS support group to write to me with input and suggestions. We plan to organize into a close-knit group with the sole aim of promoting the TV/TS movement with class for we feel that we have been looked down on and stereo-typed for too long.

Thank you very much in advance for your help in putting out the word so that we may grow and gain strength together.

Sincerely,
Renee

Kim Christy:

Hi, how are you? My name is Tami (Kevin) and I just bought my first Mimics Int. Just a few lines to let you know that I really enjoyed your magazine. You are a very pretty woman and should consider yourself very lucky. After reading your magazine I feel more free about myself and presently looking for a way to become a full time girl. I know you have been asked this many times but how do you get your face so smooth looking, and where can I find information about getting my breasts enlarged like the girls in your magazine? All the girls look just so sexy.

I think I should tell you about myself. My name is Tami and I'm a TV (still in the closet for right now). I'm 5'6" and 145 lbs. and losing. I want to get into some smaller sizes. I can remember before letting myself go that I could get into a 6-7 dress. I practice getting dressed up as often as possible but still that's not enough

I think you might know what I mean. As I write this letter I'm wearing my female clothes. I have dark brown hair with eyes to match. I'm presently studying real estate so that when I become a woman I will have a career. I really enjoy meeting people like me. Some day I would love to meet you, but if our paths don't cross I know we can still be, well sorta like, pen pals. I think maybe someday I would go all the way and become a real woman like you and your friends in the magazine. I don't have any pictures right now but when I get some I will send you some. Once again thank you for putting such a real to life magazine just for people like us. I hope to hear from you soon.

Love,
Tami

P.S. L.A. is not that far for me to travel. I would love to go out on the town with you and your girlfriends. Keep up the good work.

Dear Tami,

Good luck with your dress sizes. I have the same problem myself.

Love,
K.C.

DEAR KAREN: HELLO THERE!

My name is Korbin Paul Kacere, I'm 32 years old, a Capricorn, brown hair and eyes. I've been cross dressing since I was 5 and I like the ad you wrote in Dominant Females Magazine. I'd really enjoy contact with YOU. I live in Oakland just outside San Francisco. I noticed the ad says you're in NYC. But, it also said you're a woman of the world and you have a Southern California address. I guess if we can't meet soon, maybe you would write back to me, OK? I would love to be forced into bondage-TVism, toilet training. I also like to wear "tight Gerber baby-vinyl pants next to my skin. I love the feeling of nylons, satin, corsets, rubber girdles and leather. I have had some exciting experiences before, but not yet had a mistress who understands how I feel and who knows what I need. I often check through bondage magazines and fantasize about contact with a woman and I usually keep my secret to myself. But I read your ad and got excited with what you wrote. I'd like to be bound helpless in different positions and have my mouth stuffed and TAPED SHUT and then BE humiliated and plugged and "forced" into different positions. Also I'd love to be "MADE UP" by a dominant woman. I'd love "RUBBER BABY-MAID SERVICE," dressed and undressed and STROKED and bound up again. I love the feeling of complete helplessness. My father lives in NYC and possibly I may be there to visit him soon. So, maybe we could meet. What do ya say? I have no pictures now but I am told that I'm a good looking person and a fine looking female also. Please write ASAP and we'll keep in touch then. OK? If you say you know what I need! That's just what I'm starving for, and you are my "Fantasy Dream Girl" You can have all of me, heart and soul, so "help me!"

Mmmmmmmmmhhhh! Ouch!

Bye Love,
Korbin

P.S. I've been playing electric and acoustic guitar for 20 years, so I'm told I can play that thing good—oooooo! Maybe you'd dig having that tool. I hope so!

Dear Korbin,

My but what an active libido you have. I think it's healthy to be able to express your needs so fully.

Love,
Your Fantasy Dream Girl

Suzie primps.

Kim,

Love your magazine and try to get each issue. Would also like to see it every month. Things I like best—pictures of you and other glamour girls wearing dresses, all types, and lingerie, especially nylon or satin bras, panties, garter belts, long sheer nylons and high heels. Second best—letters to the editor from "girls" like myself. It's easy to relate to their stories for some of us and like to see their pictures. Have to agree with "Joyce," "Michelle" is a doll. Loved her in her well filled sweater, panties, pantyhose and heels. She deserves a better camera. Also liked Dannette, lovely. This section needs more space.

Loved the picture of you and the way you were dressed in your editorial #22. Need much more of you dressed like this. Spectacular!

Most articles are interesting except "Trained by Aunty." Gross! Could Linda Lee recommend nice places to go in major cities like San Francisco or Los Angeles such as Leroy or the "Green Room" you mentioned? Have no idea of their addresses.

Well Kim, just one "girl's" opinions. Eagerly looking forward to your next issue.

Love and kisses,
Suzie

Dear Suzie

Thanks for your suggestion of more reader-devoted space. I love reader input. Linda Lee and I will try to put on our thinking caps and put together an F.M.I. Directory.

K.C.

Dear Kim,

Congratulations for such a beautiful magazine. I think it's a classy one and in the future will be top of all the others. Well, let me say something. I'm interested in all the good work that your fine magazine expresses, also I would like to subscribe to your magazine. Please inform me of what I need to do, or how much it cost to get it. Also, I would like to establish contact with your TVs, TSs, and join a club, those and other interests, also my dream is to appear in your magazine. Hopefully, but first, I want to find a club to join in and learn more about the wonderful world of F.M.I. and if possible form another group or just have a social party once a week or a month. Well, if you can lead me in that way I sure thank you for your help—and keep up the good work!

Yours,
Lynn

P.S. I am a TV, 5'6½", brown hair, brown eyes, 28 years old. Still in the closet! Thanks.

Dear Lynn,

Thanks so much for speaking up! Putting an ad in our personal ad section would be a great way to start contacting other people in your area. Thanks for the kind words.

K.C.

Linda Lee's Pages

Well, here I am again after an absence of an issue. I trust you noticed? . . .

You may wonder why I didn't have anything in #23, and even if you don't I'm going to tell you anyway because I'm sure you're too nice a person to try and thump me.

What happened was simple: I ran out of things to talk about.

As I sat down to think about a column for #23, I realized that, having finished the story of my European trip in #22, and having filled in a little space at the end of those columns with current events. I had exhausted my meager store and was left with nothing to rely on but native wit and imagination.

I was in big trouble.

Of course I might have been able to come up with something eventually (it's amazing how well having Kim twisting my arm works to clear my head . . . an odd physical connection I've never quite understood . . .) but I was also extremely pressed for time as summer is my busiest season of the year at work and I had a number of outside projects going on as well.

There was a magician's symposium in San Francisco, I had a houseguest (who was there to attend the Symposium too . . .) and I was auditioning for a major theatrical project.

At the moment the Symposium is history (if you ever get a chance to see a performer named Jeff MacBride, don't miss him . . .), my former guest is doing magic on a ship somewhere in the Orient, I declined (with regret) the part offered in the major theatrical project, and it is the quietest time of year at work.

But I still don't have anything to write about!

Well . . . that's not strictly true. What would be true to say is that I haven't done anything much worth writing about over the last few months.

For instance, I haven't spoken anywhere this summer. Usually I'm scheduled for at least two talks because the National Sex Forum in San Francisco holds two series of workshops that each include a panel on gender. However the first series was cancelled this summer and the second panel fell on a day when I had an important audition (see above) so I had to miss it.

All in all, it's been a very quiet time, "gender wise".

Luckily I have you!

That is, I have all you readers who are kind enough to pass along items of interest, and this column will come mainly from them.

First of all, I've had some good feedback on the list of mystery novels with crossdressing or transgender connections published in F.M.I. #22. In fact it inspired me to read some of the titles on the list that I hadn't encountered before and generally I've found them enjoyable.

Of course I'm finding that they vary widely in awareness of the realities of the TV/TS situation, though as a general rule, the more recent books do better on these concerns than earlier ones which probably reflects, more than anything else, the greater body of accurate resource material available as background.

(Contrary to many readers' notions, conscientious writers do long stretches of library research before writing even a piece of fiction, if it touches on areas they aren't personally familiar with . . .)

One of the best I've hit so far, in terms of accuracy, is Fletch And The Widow Bradley by Gregory MacDonald.

As a long-time mystery reader, I'd encountered the first "Fletch" novel (titled simply Fletch . . .)

I'm lucky to have all you readers to pass along items of interest.

some years back. It was well done (in fact I believe it won an Edgar for its year as best first mystery novel . . .) but I hadn't liked the main character much (yes . . . he's the one named "Fletch" . . .) and hadn't read any of the others. Well, not only do I find that Fletch has mellowed a bit in the time since the first book (he seems rather less a bastard in this one . . .) but I find that MacDonald has done his homework very thoroughly. All in all I'd recommend this one highly.

On the other hand I wasn't very impressed by Ellery Queen's The Last Woman In His Life. Understand, first of all, that I like Ellery Queen and have read many of his novels and short stories—both the ones with "Ellery Queen" as detective and the others (among the latter, I think his four novels with "Drury Lane", the retired actor as detective, are outstanding . . .)

And in terms purely of the mystery, this book is not badly done either. However, the part that touches on cross-dressing has little to do with the real world as I've observed or experienced it, and one wonders whether Queen's information didn't come from some strolling Martian who happened to be in the neighborhood.

I got a complaint from one reader who wondered why I didn't provide more information about why the listed titles had been included ". . . like a remark," he says in his letter about the (transvestite) butler doing it." A fair question . . .

Here's the fair answer. Part of the fun of any book, and especially a mystery is that, if the book is well written, we as readers don't know what's going to happen next, the first time we read it.

So it doesn't seem right to me to reveal much about the plot of a mystery. Even the fact that the books were on a list of titles that touched on crossdressing or transgender themes meant that, for instance, I didn't enjoy Fletch And The Widow Bradley as much (as a mystery) as I would have if I were reading it "cold". On the other hand I can justify putting it (as well as the others) on the list because if I hadn't seen it there I probably wouldn't have read it at all.

I think by now you see the dilemma, though, especially with mystery fiction. I hate books of criticism or commentary on mysteries which give away the solutions unless one is warned ahead that it will happen (some authors and critics thoughtfully do this) so that I can avoid spoiling books I haven't encountered yet.

So in good conscience I couldn't go blithely down that list of titles giving away important plot twists.

With other kinds of books the question is not quite so touchy since they rely less on the element of surprise than does the classic mystery novel. One can give a capsule description and still not spoil the reader's fun.

With that in mind, I want to present a short list, kindly supplied by a reader in California, of books in the science fiction/fantasy field which

So many of ya seemed to find "Trained by Auntie" unsatisfactory that we thought we'd try out a new work for you. Herewith, the excerpted "Winifred not Wilfred."

Winifred not Wilfred

When I reached home I found to my astonishment that my wife had come back earlier than planned. She had already found my suitcase filled with clothers and, worse than that, I walked straight into her in the hall.

It is impossible to describe the horror on her face when she caught sight of me, or to describe the profound sinking feeling that I felt in my stomach at that moment. We stood looking at each other, she unbelieving, I quite unable to move from shock. It was no use my speaking, offering some explanation. I just had to wait until she spoke. I couldn't imagine what she would say. I felt utterly ashamed of myself, knowing that I had let her down, and that I had deceived her about my feelings. She would, I knew, be thinking these things too.

Slowly her face relaxed a little. Something seemed to have modified the obvious horror she had felt on first seeing me. And then she spoke:

'So you are a transvestite. I should have guessed. It's funny I once told a girl friend of mine that you were effeminate, but I never suspected that you'd actually dress up as a woman and go out. It's incredible.' She paused for a moment and I interrupted her.

F.M.I. Serialized Fiction Part I

'I'm sorry,' I said. 'Deeply sorry. What are you going to do?'

'What am I going to do? Well, it's strange that you should ask that because I have already had an idea. I think we have to make the punishment fit the crime—that's unless you want me to expose you in your work.'

Punishment fit the crime. Could that be escape or was it something awful?

'Yes,' she said. 'You see I have been having a little affair on the side and I rather think you had guessed that. Well, as you are so fond of dressing up as a woman I think I can turn that to advantage. For one thing my friend is married and cannot take me to his flat. And staying in hotels isn't all that pleasant or romantic. Now that I have put my cards on the table and found out about your idiosyncrasies I see no reason why he shouldn't come back here. And then you can dress up and act as my personal maid. I think that would teach you a lesson you'd never forget.'

It was a cruel way to treat me but I saw no escape for the one thing I had to prevent was her going to my superiors and exposing me. There was simply nothing I could do.

Meanwhile Wilfred had had a row with Jennifer who complained that he had not carried out his duties properly. Trying to make amends he had dressed in the maid's outfit and very contritely had started to go about his chores. It was at that moment that Phoebe had walked into Jennifer's flat.

'Good God,' she screamed. 'What the hell's this object?'

Wilfred could say nothing but Jennifer came forward. 'He's transvestite and I found him putting on my clothes. So I've been getting him to do chores for me as a maid. I think he likes that. I meant to tell you but I thought I'd give him a break. I thought he might try to cure himself.'

'It's horrendous,' said Phoebe. 'To think that I am married to a transvestite. It's humiliating. Whatever do I do, Jennifer?'

'If you'll take my advice you'll turn it to your own advantage. There's no point in losing your head and turning him into the street. The thing is to treat him like a man normally treats a woman. Let him be little wifey. Make him do the chores and treat him rough if he doesn't. I think I've started him out on the right lines. He might even be able to help us both.'

Phoebe was slowly recovering her composure and beginning to see what Jennifer was getting at. 'Yes, I see what you mean,' she said. 'As a matter of fact the idea rather appeals to me. I think I'd rather like a man to run about after me.' And then after a pause she said: 'And what about my sex life?'

'That depends what you want,' said Jennifer. 'No doubt he can oblige if you like it that way. But there are other things he can do for you. Just use him as you think fit, that's the real answer.'

Phoebe was getting the idea all right and she saw that in more ways than one she had the whip hand. From now on she had Wilfred exactly where she wanted him and she could see that Jennifer was right to suggest that she should take full advantage of it.

'Right,' she said, 'we'll start now.' She thanked Jennifer and, telling her she would talk to her later, she led the way to the flat downstairs, Wilfred having no alternative to follow her without a word.

When they reached the flat he was ordered to attend to the domestic chores. 'When you have got things shipshape,' said Phoebe, beginning to enjoy her power, 'come up to my bedroom. There is something I want you to do for me.'

He had never been keen on cunnilingus, but now she could demand as much as she desired without having to undergo the humiliation of intercourse with him which she never particularly enjoyed. Now she could use him to give her the kind of pleasure she really enjoyed: demand it whenever and for as long as she liked!

She was a slightly masculine woman in appearance, with a good figure and an especially powerful pair of thighs. Her hair was short and gave her a 'handsome' look rather than a pretty one. At school she had had lesbian inclinations towards younger girls and had been punished for them on more than one occasion. It was this memory that rankled with her and which helped to make her feel vindictive towards Wilfred. She hadn't been allowed to be her true self, why should he?

She undressed down to her undies and when Wilfred came into the bedroom, still wearing his maid's outfit supplied by Jennifer she told him to lie on his back on the floor. When he did so she straddled him and lowered her knickered crotch onto his face. 'First,' she said, 'I shall squat on you wearing my knickers until I am ready for cunnilingus. Then you will use your tongue on my clitoris.'

He made a half-hearted protest but it was of no avail, and he was in no position to disagree with her for she could have turned him into the street at the drop of a hat. In fact, he was lucky to survive the discovery of his tranvestism and he knew that he could henceforth have to carry out her bidding however unpleasant.

She pressed her crotch against his nose and mouth and then sat there manicuring her nails for more than half an hour before she was ready for cunnilingus. She then got to her feet, removed her knickers and then knelt over his face, her vulva close to his lips. 'Lick me!' she ordered him.

Wilfred had always found cunnilingus distasteful, perhaps because he really longed to have a cunt himself. Whatever the reason he now had the task of pleasing his wife and he had no choice but to lick the hairy lips that had been presented to him. He quickly got the sour taste of her secretions and was soon titillating the small bud of her clitoris, thinking of the evening he had spent with me. Phoebe began to enjoy herself but she made a mental note to give him instructions next time so that he would perform more successfully. He would have to be trained in this respect—and in many others too. It was going to be a lot of fun, she decided, with a transvestite as a husband. She could do exactly as she liked with him or threaten exposure, and doing as she liked included insisting that he did all the chores and jobs about the flat, looking after her clothes, seeing to her toilet cleanliness, and giving her whatever sexual pleasures she required. It was going to be very interesting and she would no doubt think of even more exciting ways of making the most of the new situation.

I am not sure whether my situation was better or worse than Wilfred's. My wife felt no particular urge to dominate me as Phoebe did, but on the other hand she had no scruples about humiliating me. In one way she had a stronger hold over me than Phoebe had over Wilfred for the simple reason that Wilfred did not depend on his work for an income and could have stopped working without really feeling it financially. My wife was cleverer than Phoebe and she could see the long-term advantages of having a transvestite husband. But first she Thomas Berger, Regiment Of Women: A future novel about a time when gender roles are reversed.

Jack L. Chalker, The Identity Matrix: The male protagonist has his mind/identity switched into a female body through an encounter with aliens, and then is faced with trying to save the Earth from these aliens.

M.A. Foster, The Morphrodite and The Transformer: A two-book series with a central character who “transforms” into different bodies, with each new identity being younger and of the opposite sex than the one before.

David Gerrold, Moonstar Odyssey: concerns a planet/culture where people do not have to settle on one sex until puberty.

Robert Heinlein, I Will Fear No Evil: A “brain transplant” story in which a wealthy industrialist’s brain winds up in the body of his beautiful secretary.

Tanith Lee, Drinking Sapphire Wine and Don’t Bite The Sun: concerns a culture where people can “commit suicide” and be rejuvenated looking however they want and of either sex they want.

Ursula K. LeGuin, The Left Hand Of Darkness: set on a planet where the inhabitants are androgynous except during “estrus” when they can choose their sex.

Justin Leiber, Beyond Rejection: A future novel in a time when one’s “mind” can be stored and imprinted into a “blanked” brain. A middle-aged man awakes to find his mind now housed in the body of an attractive 31 year-old female asteroid miner with a “biopros-thetic prehensile tale”.

Roland Pucetti, The Death Of The Fuhrer: Hitler’s brain is transplanted into the body of a voluptuous woman.

Joanna Russ, The Female Man: A dimension travel story primarily concerned with a parallel world where a literal war between the sexes is going on.

Thorne Smith, Turnabout: A humorous story fairly well known since it was written in 1931 by the author of Topper (and other light classics). A husband and wife, in a fit of pique, wish they could change places with each other and, to their astonishment and dismay, find their wish granted. (Made into a movie in 1940.)

Hank Stine, Season Of The Witch: A man is biologically transformed into a woman as punishment for rape.

Theodore Sturgeon, Venus Plus X: A Utopian novel about a society where everyone is a hermaphrodite.

My correspondent also included the two Gore Vidal books Myra Breckenridge and Myron, and Phillip Roth’s novel The Breast but I don’t really feel they belong with the rest of the titles on the list, being more “mainstream” than “genre” novels and only tenuously connected with science fiction of fantasy as represented by the others.

Again, some of these titles I was familiar with and others I hadn’t heard of.

I’d add also that several of the novels of Ron Goulart, who writes amusing science-fictional humor and satire, some with plots that are variations on mystery or suspense themes (often of the “who is the evil mastermind” sort . . .) routinely has gender-changed minor characters turn up. Indeed, in one book he has a character who is a “switchsexual” and can be either gender depending on mood.

Perhaps the most common science-fictional plot involving gender change is the “brain in a new body” plot. This makes sense when you consider that writers are constantly putting themselves in “new bodies” as they try to imagine what it is like to see things through the eyes of their characters.

What more logical extension of this than to imagine a character who is literally seeing things through someone else’s eyes.

So, thank you to the reader in California for sharing those titles with us, and if any of you out there have additions to either the mystery or science fiction lists or other fiction that doesn’t really fit either category, I’d be interested to know. (Has anyone ever written a western with a TV or TS slant, I wonder . . .)

I ought to say that I’m not mainly concerned with biographies or autobiographies as far as a list goes, since they are usually pretty well-publicized as far as the nature of the topic they deal with.

The main idea behind these lists has been to present titles that people may have overlooked.

I should add, too, that some of the books on both lists may no longer be in print and it could take a bit of hunting in used book stores to find them.

You might remember my mentioning that I was supposed to be involved in a segment of a talk show which would turn up on the Playboy cable television channel. As far as I know that’s still the exact status of the situation . . .

The taping has been postponed a couple of times and my contact with the production company tells me they are having some difficulty putting the show together, but they still plan to do it.

Unfortunately, the delay meant that I had to postpone the trip to Los Angeles which I was looking forward to, both for the chance to do the show and the chance to visit with my family. Hopefully, though,

I'll talk to the people at the production company when I go down for the holidays, and will have more information to report on this project next time.

Thinking of television, I noticed in TV Guide (appropriately enough . . .) that the segment of "America Undercover" dealing with gender is due this season. This was put together by Lee Grant productions and I've heard good reports on it.

Still on the subject of the Magic Box, I ought to mention that I noticed DR. JEKYLL AND SISTER HYDE on television at something like two in the morning the other day. This wouldn't be terribly noteworthy except that I don't remember seeing it turn up on the small screen before this, which is understandable since, although it's billed as a horror film, it is actually the ultimate TV/TS fantasy, dealing as it does with instant transformation from male to beautiful female.

The violence aside, it functions very well as a TV/TS film, with a lot of sequences serving as parallels to what many male TVs and TSs go through, vowing to subdue the feminine side of themselves and finding that they cannot do it.

Incidentally, the film was written by Brian Clemens, and produced by Albert Fenell and Brian Clemens whom some of you may remember as being two of the people behind THE AVENGERS television series. I've noticed that the character of Emma Peel (Diana Rigg) in that series is attractive to a lot of TV/TS people, myself included. Clemens seems to have a way of touching a nerve in this area.

I originally saw DR. JEKYLL AND SISTER HYDE at a theatre (a drive-in, which will give you an idea of the market the U.S. distributors were aiming for . . .) and reviewed it for Lee Brewster's DRAG magazine, which was going at the time. In fact that review was one of my first pieces of writing for the TV/TS subculture.

The two leads in the film, Ralph Bates and Martine Beswick were good work on the part of the casting people, as they resembled each other enough to make the change seem plausible. Ms. Beswick has strong features but is a very beautiful woman and Ralph Bates has a rather delicate face but not so feminine that the change isn't significant.

The only part of the transformation that was hard to "buy" was the fact that "Sister Hyde's" hair was about twice the length of Dr. Jekyll's, calling up the image, as I said in my earlier review, of each hair being anchored to a little spring-wound roller . . .

At any rate, if it shows up on your local station, it's worth watching. At the very least, it's the most unusual solution ever proposed for the riddle of Jack The Ripper . . .

A few items across the news desk . . .

As newspeople usually do, I'll lead off with a "bad news" story.

Many of you will be aware of the Ulane case, in which an Eastern Airlines pilot named Ken Ulane went through gender reassignment and came back to work as Karen Ulane, and was thereupon fired.

Karen Ulane sued Eastern Airlines and, on December 28th, 1983, was awarded a judgement against Eastern in U.S. District Court.

It was an important decision for all transsexuals, as it judged that they were covered under the sex discrimination provisions of title seven of the Civil Rights act of 1964, even though previous court rulings have excluded both transvestites and homosexuals as people whose situations do not fall under what was meant by the word "sex".

Judge John F. Grady's opinion was a heartening one, for he clearly took his job seriously and did a considerable amount of learning in the course of the three-month trial.

As he put it himself in the opinion: "Prior to my participation in this case I would have had no doubt that the question of sex was a very straightforward matter . . .

After hearing the testimony I find there is no settled definition in the medical community as to what we mean by sex."

So far the question might arise why this comes under the heading of bad news. As those who keep up with such things know, however, a case as important as this one is not likely to stop at the District court level.

The bad news is that Judge Grady's decision in the Ulane case was overturned by the Court of Appeals a couple of weeks ago. Whether the case goes farther depends largely on the resources of Karen Ulane and the dedication of her legal team. All transgendered people can only hope they will carry the case forward.

The next step is the U.S. Supreme Court. Traditionally, and this is certainly the case with the current court, the judiciary tends to be more conservative, politically, the higher one moves. But there's always a chance and we can do little else at this point but keep our fingers crossed.

In another incident likely to result in a court battle, the Immigration and Naturalization Service has attempted to deny citizenship to Manuel Castanada because the U.S. citizen he married is a post-op TS.

In an exceptionally short-sighted view, the INS policy states that TSs cannot be considered "women" because they cannot have children. To quote their statement "The concept of woman is fundamentally tied to the capacity for reproduction," an attitude which will surely come as a nasty shock to those genetic females who have had hysterectomies, tubal ligations, or for other reasons can't have children.

I'd be willing to bet that if some way were suddenly found to enable TSs to give birth to children (don't I wish! . . .) that the INS would suddenly find some other criterion to be "fundamental . . ."

This story was publicized in March and I haven't heard about any resolution. If anyone out there has heard further news, I'd be interested to know what the current status of the case is.

Before leaving the news I do want to throw in the one encouraging item I've collected . . .

A group of fashion industry insiders known as The Fashion Group (what a clever name . . .) gave their "Girl of the Year" award to top fashion model Ms. Teri Toye, who used to be Mr. Toye. It's nice to know that people in this country are following the high-heeled footsteps of models like Tula and Amanda Lear, and that there are some people who are able to view the whole issue sensibly instead of feeling threatened by it.

In the last issue in which my column appeared (#22) I mentioned meeting Marsha Botzer from Seattle at the H.B.I.G.D.A. Symposium at Bordeaux.

I had a letter the other day from Marsha to let me know that the work she is doing is growing rapidly.

To quote from her letter: "We provide individual and group counseling for (transsexuals), a support group, and maintain a medical referral service as well as a list of other related service providers such as lawyers, electrologists, and make-up consultants. We keep current on surgical techniques and stay in contact with surgeons doing gender reassignment. In addition, we do a great deal of public awareness and advocacy and provide information and education to the professional community."

She goes on to say "We are in the process of starting a Spouses and Significant Others Support Group since we also counsel family members. We have two transvestites who help facilitate a group and assist me with counseling in that area."

The name of Marsha's group is the Ingersoll Gender Center, Inc. and their number is (206) 328-3546. It's good to know that people in the Northwest now have this resource available to them.

Thinking of the Northwest, I have learned that Metamorphous Press, a small Oregon publisher of books in the behavioral sciences is set to publish, in the near future, a book titled The Uninvited Dilemma which deals with transsexuality.

Over the last few weeks I've had a chance to read some of the manuscript of this book. Its author is Kim Stuart, and the book seems, so far, to be a significant advance over what has been available in the past, for it tries to view the subject from a variety of viewpoints.

Rather than narrowing the focus to see the phenomenon only in terms of a medical or psychological or social problem, it tries to encompass these aspects and many more to give a rounded picture of what a transgendered person experiences.

Based primarily on seventy-five in depth interviews with both male-to-female and female-to-male transsexuals, bolstered by much other research, the book is different from both the first person biographies or the clinically detached scientific studies which have largely made up the available "serious" literature on this very complex subject.

As more information is available on the book I will certainly pass it along, and after I finish reading the manuscript I will do a more thorough review, probably in the next F.M.I.

Well, that about covers the news and just about finishes up the column this time except for a few brief thoughts . . .

First, thanks to all who have ordered the Conversation With Linda Lee tape. I understand that the fact that the "album" of photos is no longer available doesn't seem to have changed things much and orders still trickle in. (I occasionally wish they would "flood" in, but that's expecting too much, I think . . .)

If you are interested, the one-hour audio tape of me, talking and answering the sorts of questions I'm most frequently asked when I speak, is available for $9.95 plus $1.00 for postage and handling (add applicable sales tax in California . . . (from:

OZMA PRODUCTIONS
P.O. Box 23001
Oakland, California 94623

(Oakland, for those of you from out of state, is east across the bay from San Francisco . . .)

If you have any news or comments, or any additions to the various book lists, write to me care of Ozma Productions and the message will reach me. If it weren't for you kind people who pass information along, I would have no column at times like this, and so I thank you most sincerely.

Apparently no one out there is interested in a complete set of Female Mimics, dating from the very first issue, at least that's my conclusion from the underwhelming response to the announcement that I was thinking of selling my own set. If anyone is interested, for heaven's sake write to me!

That's really it for now. Thank you for reading and I hope I'll be able to talk to you again next time.

Sincerely,

Linda

wanted to humiliate me completely by having me present as her maid-servant while she had intercourse with another man. It was unscrupulous in the extreme, but in every other way she treated me fairly, even helping me with my clothes.

The night Alan came I was dressed in simple feminine clothes and introduced as Jackie's maid. 'She does everything for me,' said Jackie. 'She's an absolute treasure.' And then after dinner she turned to me in Alan's presence and said: 'I want you to go up and prepare the bed for us, Veronica.'

I went to the bedroom and made things ready, my jealousy now beginning to make itself felt. I knew that she was going to make me stay and watch the proceedings and that was something I dreaded. When they came up to the room I tried to suggest that I should leave them but Alan must have been primed in some way—perhaps he had ideas of a threesome for I had seen him looking at me with quite a lot of interest—for he at once said that he would prefer it if I stayed. 'I've never had the pleasure of a maid-servant being present when I've fucked a woman before,' he laughed. 'It should be quite an interesting experience. Please stay and look after us.'

Alan and my wife Jackie then undressed in front of me. It seemed to me completely shameless. Couples, we know, exchange partners, or even indulge in a threesome, the husband allowing his wife to be fucked by the third party, or sometimes it is a woman that joins the couple and the husband makes love to her as well as his wife. But it must be very rarely a man is forced to watch his wife being fucked by a man while he takes no part in the proceedings at all. Even rarer for that man to be dressed as a woman while he witnesses the seduction of his wife.

Jackie flaunted her lovely body before Alan and he took her in his arms and held her close, kissing her luscious mouth as he pressed his already rampant prick against her. Pangs of jealousy overwhelmed me, yet at the same time I cannot deny that I got a thrill of pleasure from watching them. Seeing my wife naked with Alan was extremely painful for me but it was the kind of pain that can also be pleasurable. When he led her to the bed and laid her on her back before taking his place at her side and looking down at her naked inviting body, there was a moment when I wanted to rush forward and stop them. But I soon became fascinated at what was happening and even aroused by it.

He bent over her and kissed her mouth as she reached down to caress his prick. After a brief manipulation of it, he took his mouth from her and started to feel between her thighs which she readily parted for him. In seconds he was feeling her slit, parting the lips and thrusting a finger into it. I think I was the only man who had ever done this before Alan. My jealousy returned but I kept my cool, closely observing every move he made. It wasn't long before he was ready for her and she for him. I even heard her murmuring that she wanted him inside her, murmuring almost pleadingly, and he quickly obliged by mounting her and guiding his prick between the already wet lips, sinking the shaft deep inside her. That was the worst moment for me for I remembered how warm and exciting it was to be inside her.

They lay almost still for a while, his mouth glued to hers before he began to raise his buttocks and then thrust into her. She clasped her legs round his—an action she had never done with me—and he reached under her bottom to grip her firmly as he began his regular thrusting movements into her vagina.

I was still possessed with jealousy yet I was beginning to feel strangely excited by the thought of my wife submitting to another man and being seduced by him. It was almost as if I myself were being violated, and I began to identify with my wife and thought of myself as being fucked by Alan.

He was soon increasing the speed and power of his thrusts and she was responding actively by arching her pelvis to meet them. She also writhed from side to side, her head thrown back as was her custom when she was close to a climax, while he began to make grunting sounds of satisfaction as he reached a point where sheer lust for her body and for his own fulfillment took over. And with some final cries of 'I'm coming, darling' he seemed to shudder in a sustained moment of ecstasy as he ejaculated inside her, triggering off her climax almost instantaneously.

When they had been lying in each other's arms for perhaps a quarter of an hour I was told by Jackie to bring a bowl of warm water and to wash Alan's cock. It was an appalling humiliation for me to have to do such a thing but she warned me when she saw the negative look on my face that she would take steps to make me if I didn't get on with it. Having no choice I went off, filled a bowl with warm water and brought it back to the bedroom. Alan got to his feet while I placed the bowl on a chair and then he told me to wash him. I took his rapidly detumescing prick in my hands and bathed it in the hot water, quickly noticing that he enjoyed the way I took hold of him and washed him with my fingers.

'Why did you object to washing me?' he asked, not knowing, of course, that I was a woman, but having heard what Jackie had said about 'taking steps' if I didn't do as she asked. 'Don't you like men, my dear?' he asked me.

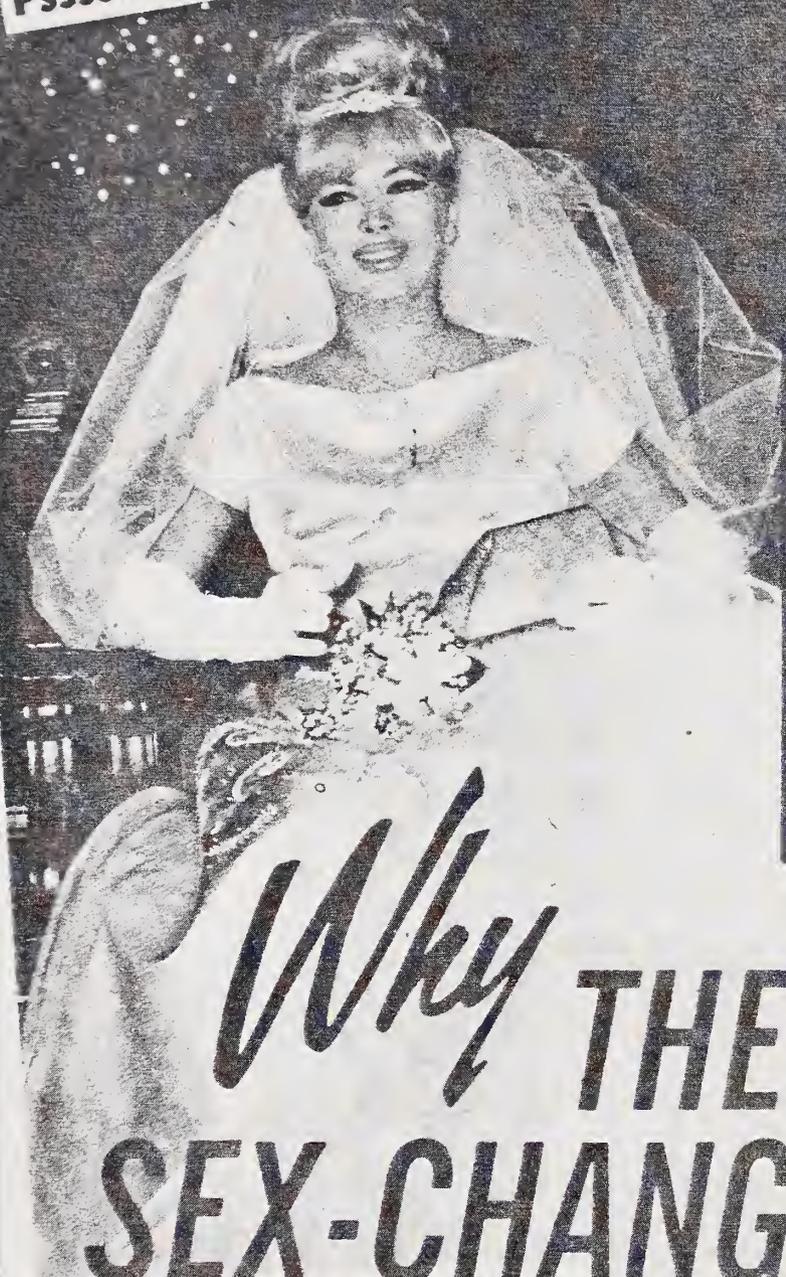

'I've no objection to men,' I said, doing everything to keep up the masquerade that I was a woman, 'but I am not so keen on bathing a man's prick just after he has had the pleasure of another woman.'

'I can understand that,' he said, looking at Jackie. And then turning to me he said: 'Well if your mistress has no objection perhaps I'll do the same for you one day. I think you're rather fetching.' And with those words he leaned over the bowl and kissed me in my lips.

My wife wasn't really antagonistic to my transvestism, at least not in the way that Phoebe was to Wilfred's, but she was still determined to keep me in my place, seeing the advantages of the situation from her point of view. But when we were alone she encouraged me to Anyway you look at it, something smelled queer about the strange marriage of Coccinelle, who got so carried away with being the world's greatest female impersonator—"he" decided to dispense with a lot of useless anatomical equipment and emerge a "SHE." IT DIDN'T last more than eight months!

After all that noisy international hullabaloo, the strange but ballyhooed marriage between Coccinelle—the world's most sensational female impersonator—and her highly confused hubby quickly fizzled to a pffft.

And how! But it's not the least bit surprising! For, no matter from what angle you examined this madly, mixed-up mating, you eventually had to come to one conclusion:

It was wrongo from the word go, a case of one-way traffic trying to ride both sides of a two-way street.

It was only last March that the kooky Cocci was, by act of surgery and act of court, officially transformed into a woman and ankled out into a sequinned new life as Jacqueline Dufresnoy.

The official O.K. climaxed a long, squalling, hair-pulling, finger-nail scratching and loudly publicized struggle that began when the act that had been Coccinelle's bread and butter—playing a dame—first went to his head.

He wanted to play the role full time forever—this walking advertisement for "His-Her" towels—and after a series of operations that began in Casablanca in October, 1958, he—that is, "she"—allegedly had more or less of the necessary equipment.

But this headlined odd-ball sex stunt took on overtones of downright perversion when the shapely she who walks like a he fell madly in love with "its" manager, a try-anything-once guy named Francis Bonnet.

This off-key pair of mis-matched love birds were hot to marry—after all, two can live as cheaply as one, especially if they can share the razor.

But it was quite a job convincing the French authorities they should sanction this highly-publicized "circus." Finally the Paris courts gave in and on March 16, 1962, the 31-year-old Coccinelle—oops, pardon—Mademoiselle Jacqueline Dufresnoy promised to love, honor and obey "her" blushing bridegroom, four years "her" junior.

Outside the church there were a few shrill cheers, a lot of boos and—when the happy couple emerged, the bride suffering a bit from five o'clock shadow—instead of throwing rice, the crowd threw a barrage of squashy ripe tomatoes.

This hostility didn't dent the newlyweds' enthusiasm, for only a few days later they had the colossal nerve to call a press conference where they simpered and held hands and announced they planned to remain childless because doctors had said a child would endanger the bride's life!

Of course, everyone knew damn well this doctored-up semi-sexual sap could never bear a child, and the press conference was just another calculated device to keep the headline hot.

And all that hoopla apparently worked. The wrong-way match wangled bookings all through South America where curious Latins got their kicks trying to figure out, literally, who wore the pants. Coccinelle of his-her-husboob.

Only the United States had the guts to slam the door on this exhibitionist duo to prevent their putrid perversion from showing up in the nation's night spots.

And just as well, too. For the creature with the artificial hormones was just aching for trouble. And it hit in Buenos Aires where "she" was spotted by a handsome Paraguayan dancer, Mario Heym, while cavorting in a backless, strapless, almost frontless gown showing off those ample man-made breasts.

As Coccinelle warbled "her" big hit number, "I'm looking for a millionaire," co-star Mario stood stupefied in the wings, panting with lust for this mincing, mixed-up French pastry.

Coccinelle flipped for the handsome dancer at first sight—he melted "her" whiskers, all right—and "she" gave hubby Francis the word—get lost.

A storm broke. Coccinelle must have been delirious with two men fighting over "her" charms—just like a real glamour girl. It was a losing battle for Bonnet.

"Mario," lisped Coccinelle "is my dream man . . . the one I have always dreamed of . . . now I know what love really is. I love him deeply from the bottom of my heart."

And this re-landscaped refugee from the men's locker room bitterly confessed that life with Bonnet had been one spat after another. The queer, plumed peacock hinted . . . psst . . . psst . . . that hubby had failed to satisfy her boudoir demands.

What a blow for Bonnet's ego. But then even the most talented French lover would have had a hard time trying to solve Coccinelle's bedroom geometry problems.

Having shed Bonnet, Coccinelle

now plans for a triumphant return to Paris with "her" new 21-year-old pet, Mario, but the outraged public is getting ready to throw something more damaging than tomatoes.

Paris' doctors are boiling mad over the whole freak atmosphere surrounding Coccinelle's so-called transformation. Doctors say—surgery or no—"It" is still a male.

The court's labeling Cocci a female and giving he-she permission to marry was granted on false pretenses, doctors insist, and must be revoked.

But the many-gendered Coccinelle is so wrapped up with the passionate Mario, "she" doesn't seem worried.

"She" is all embroiled with divorce arrangements and trying to make a big star out of Mario, the beardless-boy who, she titters, satisfies her wildest "sexual" dreams.

The whole sex-sick affair smells—no, stinks—with the unmistakable reek of depravity. And it is high time these publicity-hungry perverts with their sex-change surgery were taught a lesson.

With the lights out, they may fool their mixed-up sack-time sweeties. But under the blinding spotlight of public scrutiny, the sordid, twisted truth will be inevitably revealed.

Winifred not Wilfred

dress as a woman and gave me a great deal of help with make up and clothes. It was because she was really quite sympathetic to what she called my 'aberration' that I told her about Wilfred and the predicament he found himself in. Although she laughed when I told her the whole story, including his being discovered by Jennifer, she really did think it was unfair of her to treat him in such a way, and for Phoebe herself to have reacted so strongly to his transvestism. As a result she suggested that I should invite Wilfred round to talk about his situation.

Meanwhile Phoebe was taking extreme measures to revenge herself on Wilfred. At first she was less inclined than Jennifer to insist on Wilfred taking on the role of a subservient woman, but within a few days all her pent-up hatred for men began to get the better of her and she spent her whole day thinking of ways of making Wilfred suffer. She had complete control over him now for if he didn't obey her she would expose him to his business associates and to his friends, and even Wilfred didn't want to face that, though he was by no means as dependent on his career and position as I was.
