On to less pleasant subjects. First a thanks to all of you who have given your support to our ad section in the past. We regret that we have to start charging for the placement of ads. You'll see a price breakdown on the ad placement page at the end of that section. This will be an initial placement fee and we will not raise forwarding fees. The expenses of putting the magazine out are getting astronomical and we would like to do anything we can to avoid having to raise the cover price. What we can give you in return is more cover space devoted to the fact that we have personal ads, which we have been neglecting of late. And hopefully you've noticed that we have tried to raise the quality of our ad clerical work. We try to keep up with deleting ads that are no longer valid and we try to keep the correct ad number with the correct photo, but we are not perfect.

Please write to us immediately if your ads come back from the post office undeliverable or if you notice a flaw in your placed ads. We want this magazine to be a way for all of us to feel closer and to communicate with one another.

Please stay with us through these rough times and we will try to give you the best, most entertaining forum for the kinds of things that interest you.

Dear Kim,

I'm in Love (as truckers say)!!

I fell in love with Laura; (F.M.I. V15 N3 #29) if she thinks she has a long way to go, I'd hate to see what she'd say about me.

I'm a trucker who wears panties, hose, garters and negligees as often as possible. I've been shaving my legs every once in a while but can't all the time because I don't have the privacy I need all the time. I wear panties all the time.

I wish I could find someone to enjoy my feminine side with. My first wife divorced me over it.

Back to Laura, does she advertise in F.M.I.? I don't think she has far to go at all. I'm originally from the Chicago area and when I get back there sometime I'd like to contact her if possible.

I've made a couple of New Year's resolutions: 1) To lose weight so that I can look better in a dress. 2) To not be ashamed of myself or what I like to wear. 3) To find out more about myself and make contact with somebody who can help me understand more about myself and dressing.

Kim, I've been a longtime fan of yours. I remember some years back when you were just being a picture in the magazine and not the editor.

One thing I would like to see in your magazine is a conversion chart of men's to women's sizes or how to measure yourself to pick out the right sizes and whether you are a petite, misses, ladies, etc. I know most mail order catalogs have charts, but where do we measure ourselves to get the right size?

As many have told you, you're the greatest and keep up the good work.

Love,
Janet

Dear Janet,

Thanks for the good words. A conversion chart would be an excellent idea! Would any readers out there be able to help us with that?

Dear Kim,

Seems like the highlight of my life, when, after several trips to the adult bookstores, I finally spotted the beautiful cover girl and the magic letters F.M.I. It's really a thrill for me. I hurry home, and always dress, if I'm not already in feminine attire, before even opening the cover. Then I open to your lovely presence, always wondering how you'll be dressed and look. On to "Backstage" or another interesting article, and to "letters" and the wonderful sexy stories by Priscilla, and some of your other readers. And then the beautiful ones. I can't get over Michelle. She is just gorgeous. Finally to the feature stories and personal ads. By this time I'm in a fever, and wish I had a partner to enjoy it all with.

After some early awkward advances out of the closet, I think I'm making some progress in being an acceptable "lady" in public although I'm still not very confident, and always have the feeling that someone is going to point fingers at me and say "hey, look at the man in drag." And on the rare occasions that I notice a man smiling, I get the uncomfortable feeling that he's really laughing at me.

I just can't seem to manage the soft feminine looks that I so much admire in you. No matter how hard I try, I feel that my prominent masculine features show through. It's very discouraging when I want so much to be a pretty girl, although I know it can never be. Still, there's the urgent need to keep trying.

Stay healthy and happy, Kim, and I look forward to your next FMI.

Love always,
Michelle

P.S. Hope you don't mind the somewhat daring photo, but I adore sexy nylon satin slips and panties to wear, and no one ever sees them but me.

Dear Kim,

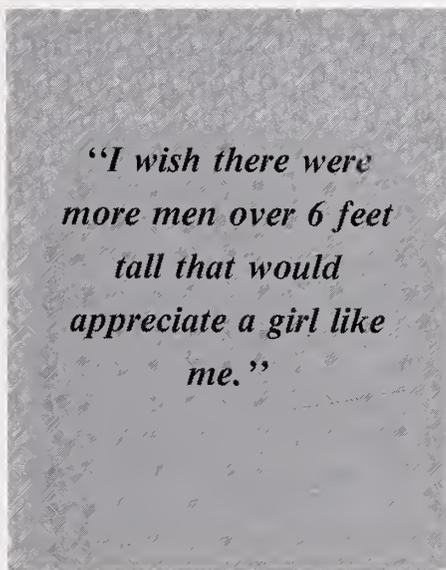

I very much enjoy your magazine. It is done with taste and class. I adore the photos of the very professional and lovely ladies who fill each page. It is a fantasy for us to view and imagine that we could ever be so gorgeous. I am 6'2", 190 lbs., a TV, 6'5" in heels, and draw more than my share of attention no matter where I go. I go out dressed at least once a week and I adore being a girl. I only wish there were more men over 6 feet tall who appreciate girls like me. At any rate, I'm close to a fun TV scene in Washington, D.C., and I travel to NYC, Rochester and Atlanta, so I can indulge my femme side regularly.

Best,
Lynne

Dear Kim and FMI,

Your publication is far and away the most superior of its type. I anxiously look forward to each issue. I am very grateful to your publication, as in the past, using the personal ads section, I have been able to meet the right people to occasionally indulge in my fantasies with. You, Kim, have been a model for all T.V.s as you have shared your love with us. For this I most sincerely thank you! I hope your magazine can help me in the fulfillment of my most important fantasy as is described in my personal ad. I would have no objections to being in any of your other publications and would like to hear from other readers with similar aspirations. You have contributed so invaluable to "our world" and again, thank you for being you!

Love,
Carole

P.S. If you could in any way find the time to return my photo (for future use as duplicates are hard to get) it would be greatly appreciated. Also, Kim, I have chronicled many of my "true experiences" and would love to share them with you if you need them for publication. (I have also begun a book) (They would make even a straight person pant!)

Thanks again!!!

Love,
Carole

Dear Carole,

Thank you so much! I'm sorry that we cannot return the ad photos. They must stay on file in our office for legal reasons. Please, Carole, share some of your personal experiences with our readers and me, we'd love to hear them!

Love,
Kim

Dear Ms. Christy:

I recently read a letter published in FMI which compelled me to write you. My hope is that you have retained Laura's address somewhere in your records and would be kind enough to forward the enclosed letter to her. I've only read one issue of your magazine, which was Volume 15, No. 3, but I believe you are doing a great service to many human beings trapped in various states of gender confusion and misidentification. The forum you provide is much needed, and I'm sure, has helped many individuals in terms of both assistance and self-expression.

I found Laura's courage and determination very moving. She's an inspiration and she's very attractive besides. I think she sees flaws in herself that others would not. The world needs more Lauras.

Sincerely,
MTM

P.S. (Not that it matters, but I'm not a TV, TS, etc. I'm just a regular male of the species who likes to choose his own friends. I found Laura very special and would someday like to call her my friend.)

Dear Readers,

Laura's letter came to us with no return address. Although I'm sure that the support and care for her that is reflected in our letters section reaches her somehow.

Priscilla

Dear Kim,

In answer to your questions in issues #28 and 29, I think "TV Confessions" is very appealing and hits home with me. Reads like something I would like to do. I also like both "Allure" and "Backstage." Very sexy pictures. Battle of the VIP's was marvelous, and your "cover girl" Michelle is just too much. I'm in love with her.

Still like Letters best. I'm surprised more "girls" don't write. I agree with you that Laura is very pretty. She doesn't have to change a thing and could go anywhere as a "girl."

Thanks Kim, for your help and understanding. Would not only like to see more of your "participation," but more pictures of you as well. You're still the greatest. And if I could be one of the "girls" in your "Drag Do's and Don'ts." I'd love it, even if I were a "don't."

Love,
Priscilla

Thanks, Priscilla,

Tell all your friends to write us more often. We love long, chatty letters.

Best,
Kim

Dear Kim,

Hi, I just read my first F.M.I. magazine. WOW! After all these years I now realize my dreams can come true. I really can become the woman I have always wanted to be. If I may, I would like to tell you a little about myself so you know where I am coming from and what I'm looking for.

My chosen female name is: SUSAN HEATHERTEN; my male figure is: 5'7½", 140 lbs., 37½-30-38, my chosen female figure is 5'7½", 125 lbs., 44DDD-26-38. I am currently 31 years old.

My main problem is not having the guts to come out of the closet. I have been out in drag only three times. Not only that I don't have the figure I want, and I really don't know how to dress, I have had such a great fear someone would find out that I never took the time to learn proper dress and make-up.

I have been wearing female clothes, (under my male clothes) since age 9. I have never found out what size I wear; if it feels and looks good, I wear it. The bra and panties I am wearing right now under my male clothes feel very good to wear, but I need help to get the rest of me put together. I do not look, sound, or act female, but the yearning is so strong I can taste it. A few other facts: I am a virgin, I am working part-time, and I have a hobby that I like — I collect all kinds of pictures of women I want to look like, or clothes I like & want to wear, perfume and make-up I want to wear and things I want to do as a woman.

"The yearning is so strong that I can taste it."

I know it is going to take time for me to change to what I want to be, but I need answers and support. Some of the questions I have are: 1. Who can I contact in my area to help me learn about proper dress and make-up? 2. What is the best way to begin my new body, breasts, removal of hair, etc. 3. Are there any places in my area that can help me get on the road to becoming employed as a woman? 4. Are there any meeting places for someone who is new to going out all decked out, social functions, dances, etc.

I hope to meet you.

Love always,
Susan Heatherten

Dear Susan,

Please fill out the ad form for the personal ads. There are a lot of people out there who would be willing to help a sincere person.

Best of luck
K.C.

Dear Kim:

Here is a sequel to the story by Sally that you were kind enough to publish in issue #26. I hope you like it.

After it was over and Ted was laying back on the car seat still moaning and saying how terrific it had been, I felt very strange and ashamed.

I couldn't believe I had really done it. Here I was kissing a boy's penis and just after I had promised Daddy that I was going to be the best daughter a father ever had and after both Mother and Daddy were good enough to allow me to have a sex change. What kind of a lady was I starting out to be?

I straightened my skirt, put on fresh lipstick and asked Ted to take me home. I said I don't suppose you'll have any respect for me now. But he took me in his arms and kissed me, told me he loved me more than ever, and wanted me to be his girl. He said what happened wasn't my fault. He made me do it and it would be our secret. That made me feel a lot better and when we got home I agreed to see him the next evening with both anticipation and concern about making love to him again.

The next morning at the breakfast table Mother asked me if I weren't seeing the same young man too often. I wondered if she suspected something. Then I revealed that he wanted me to be his girl and go steady. That was a mistake because Daddy was hardly used to seeing me in skirts yet. He said absolutely not, no son of his was going steady with another boy. Mother corrected "Daughter" but he said he didn't care. When I was eighteen and changed sex for good I could do anything I wanted. But for now, no more boyfriends. I flew crying to the bedroom. What was I going to tell Ted?

Then Mother came in to comfort me, but said there was no way to change father's mind. I reminded her that the junior prom was coming up and she had promised me my first long dress to wear to it. She said she would work on Daddy and not to worry I would be one of the prettiest little girls at the prom.

Then I phoned Ted to tell him the bad news. He flew into a rage and said he was going to see me anyway. I said yes, honey, we would see each other at school. Thinking I couldn't see him again made me miss him terribly. I wanted his hands feeling my developed breasts and I loved it when he held me close and kissed me and slide my skirt up and placed both hands on my panties and pressed me into his stiff organ. I couldn't wait to get to school. In morning class I sat across the aisle from Ted, wearing a mini skirt that showed my nylon clad legs almost up to my panties. I could see that he was going crazy looking at them along with several other boys in class. At noon Ted asked me to go for a ride with him and I just couldn't wait. We went to a secluded spot and started to neck. We were both so hot we couldn't stand it. He began to feel me all over and I felt the outline of his stiff penis through his pants. He said, "Please, honey. Take it." I opened his fly, took out his huge shaft and covered it with kisses. Then he begged me to let him screw me. Oh, how I wanted to spread my legs, slide down on that throbbing cock and become completely impaled on it. But I said I couldn't and brought him to climax the only way I could. Later he asked me if I was ever going to let him take me. I promised him that when I was eighteen I was going to let him stick that big thing in me and screw me to death. He became hard again immediately. I giggled and said, "Oh, Ted, and I just put on fresh lipstick!"

Mother was true to her word and finally talked Daddy into letting me go to the prom. Shopping for prom gowns was such a thrill and I tried on several before deciding on a lovely pink chiffon with a full skirt that required several petticoats. Even Daddy beamed when I appeared in the gown for Ted's approval. He took me in his arms and said, "My pretty little girl."

I thought I had died and gone to heaven. The prom was the highlight of my life. Ted allowed each of his friends one dance with me, and it was there I learned the power of feminine charm. Every boy I danced with gave ample evidence that he wanted me in bed. I was about to complain to Ted but realized it was only natural. Boys will be boys.

With the prom over, my thoughts turned to my upcoming sex change and my life as a true girl. It wouldn't be long now before I would no longer have to hide my true identity from Ted and be loved as a woman.

Sincerely,
Sally

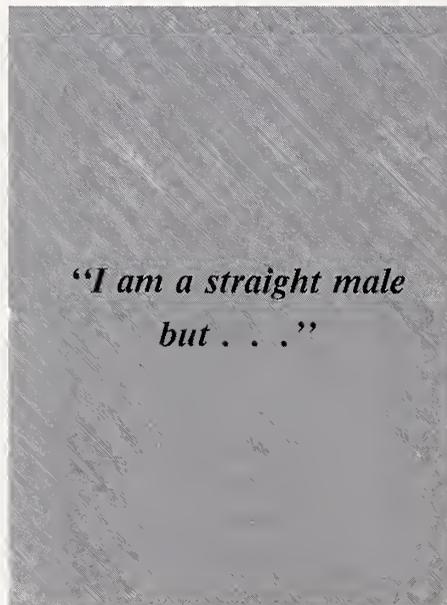

Dear Sally,

Thank you for a lovely story. We always enjoy hearing from you. Maybe some day you'd like to have a regular column in F.M.I. Write to me and tell me what you'd think.

Love,
Kim

Dear Editor,

I am a straight male but the curiosity of these human beings with their female bodies and male sex organs have built my curiosity to a peak. Although I've never had no interest or desire in attraction with any one that I have the same type of sex organs I have and have been faithful to my wife (thanks to X-rated movies and mags which satisfy my fantasies with out my having to go out in the streets to bars picking strange ladies risking social diseases) for the last 5 years I must confess some of these TV gals look more feminine and attractive than a lot of women with the right key (female sex organs). Yet I would not cut out on my wife even for Vanessa Del Rio, (all males' dream whore) a real woman or beauties like Sulka or Margo (well built & stack TV's who have become popular to macho men and lesbian women). Like many real macho men I too fear social taboos of admitting that because TV's like Sulka, Margo, Nikko, Sylvia, Lisa, Lynn, Kim and Toni moves my blood because 95 percent of their bodies are Females and only 5 percent of their bodies are male-like (their genitals). But that the drawing card of the Freak side show that build up every one's curiosity, the female body with male sex organs. These TV's were wise to keep their male genitals (and not go through the sex change operation) which attract them to the eyes of lesbians and heterosexual men. They are not that attractive to straight women, dykes and feminine acting gay men. They are attractive to those macho gay men because most macho gay men are bi-sexual and often over play their "macho" side to hide their "gay" side. TVs are attractive to a lot of heterosexual males who fear coming out of the closet because these macho guys are just curious about these female bodies with male genitals like theirs. It's something new to straight guys and you know every body wants to know "what's new!" And this is really some thing new for us guys.

TVs are not attractive to heterosexual women because these straight women do not want to date some one that is almost or more attractive than them selves. Dykes are not interested in getting screw because the dykes want to play the male role and do the screwing, so they don't want women with cocks, they want women with pussies. Lesbians love the idea of being screwd by TVs more than they like being screwd by dykes because dykes are just as hard to relate to as straight men because most dykes think "macho" just like the guys. Lesbians (unlike the dyke who love to do the screwing in a man like role) love to get screwd in the feminine gay role. Although lesbians love getting screwd they won't let real men screw them if they can get a substitute because they always say they can't stand straight men's John Wayne macho type bull S___T. So the lesbians find in TVs their dream, a feminine mind like theirs that they can relate to and a feminine body like theirs with a screwing tool to satisfy their needs with out all that John Wayne macho bull. I don't think these feminine gay men are into dating TV because just like straight women they don't like the idea of dating some one looking better than them selves. I'd love to see these TVs in tri-love-making roles satisfy-ing and getting satisfaction from a macho stud like John Holmes while at the same time pumping it to Vanessa Del Rio in satisfying her macho-male lover and her lesbian female lover. I may have to order such a magazine through Hustler because of the new state law dictating grown up's rights to sell and buy what they wish.

A Macho "Shy" Guy

Thanks for the refreshing viewpoint on the gender wars. Should you have any of the experiences you desire, please write and tell us.

Best,
Kim

Dear Kim,

The best thing that has happened to transvestites recently, in my opinion, has been the emergence of your magazine. The articles and features are the boost that all we girls need to know that we are not alone. I must say that I have been inspired to complete some manuscripts that I have been working on.

I would love to live out my life as a female doing the thing that I feel suited me the most. Right now I feel that writing about the transvestite experience is what I was meant to do or at least I feel that I have much to say about it. At this point in my life that's the only thing that makes sense.

I would like to submit a manuscript, that I have recently completed, to your publishing department for analysis and possible publication, if I may.

Kim, I would so like to meet with you in person and discuss so many things with you. Please tell me that its possible and maybe even soon.

I'll tell you briefly about myself; I seem to remember always yearning for some female article to come in contact with my senses. I needed at an early stage in my life to caress with my senses and imagination rather than passion and desire, which later became my needs when I transformed into Regina. Like most of us I started dressing in my mothers things and later my sisters' things. I ducked, dodged, and lied in order to have the few stolen moments that I could become Regina. The enjoyment was worth any risk as far as I was concerned. To make a long story short, the more I do it the more I like it, and I love finding so many different ways to look, smell, act and feel so sexy.

I am bi-sexual and lately I have been dying to have a relationship with a strong aggressive lover who will make me feel like the queen that I know I am and also the bitch that I'd love to be.

I am lonely and would love to share my life with someone of similar interest, male or female. I am trying to remain patient, hoping that it will happen. Perhaps I could place a short article in your personals column or you could publish my letter.

Enclosed is a picture of myself. Please respond soon, I need so desperately to hear from you. Let me know that there is hope and care out there for souls like me who would otherwise be lost if not for you.

All my love and kisses,
Regina

Dear Regina,

Please remember that you are not alone. There are many people who care about you, if only in spirit, in our community. Please continue to share with us and accept my apologies for my inability to make personal appointments.

*Best,

CHILI PEPPER

REPRINTED FROM CHICAGO SUN-TIMES, SUNDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1985

By Marcia Froelke Coburn

It's one of those brisk autumn afternoons, as crisp as a new-fallen leaf, so it's the perfect time to settle in at the bar in the Pump Room for some girl talk. Which is what Chili Pepper and I are doing. Or is it?

First question of the afternoon: what does Pepper—star female impersonator at the Baton Lounge, well-known bon vivant about town, flaming redhead with fabulously long lilac-tinted nails (“thank you, they’re mine”), mascara-spiked eyelashes, wrists encased in gold bracelets and a birth certificate that reads “male” — want to be called? “He” or “she”? How does Pepper think of him- or herself? “As a person. I do. Not a he or a she. I don’t consider myself as a man or a woman.”

That sounds intriguing, but difficult if not impossible.

“People see me on the street and they think I’m a woman. I have no make-up on, just a little mascara and lip gloss. But they see me as a woman. It’s whatever you see visually. Let’s settle the he-she question like this: What do I look like to you?”

OK, she looks like any other woman you’d see in that neighborhood: leather pants, fashionably large tweedy coat, slouchy hat, creamy well-tended (and hormonally plumped) skin. The gestures are smooth, graceful and underplayed. The voice is light, with a cha-cha kind of rhythm and, occasionally, a vague hint of some ethnic—middle-European?—background. And there’s her girlish sensibility, which has her asking “Who do you go out with? Is he nice?” within minutes of first sitting down.

So she seems like a woman to me and she definitely seems like a woman to the two 50-ish male conventioners who come over moments later. “Why don’t you girls let us join you?” says the one whose tie reads “Fly With Me.” “Let us

“People see me on the street and they think I’m a woman.”

buy you some drinks.” The other man puts his hand on Pepper’s shoulder. “Hello there,” he says. “I noticed you and your wonderful jewelry from across the room.” “Oh, do you like it?” asks Pepper. “I like it and I like you,” the man answers, starting to draw up a chair.

Within minutes, Pepper has expertly shooed the men back to their own bar stools. “Oh sure, I’m used to it. It happens all the time. They think they’re going to get . . . lucky is how we’ll put it. Sometimes I’ll say, ‘I’m sorry, I have a husband.’ Or sometimes I tell them what’s going on and let them deal with that.”

Well, how does she break the news?

“I say, ‘I’m flattered that you find me attractive but I’m probably not what you’re looking for.’ And I explain and then, a lot of times, they’re intrigued. They want to get to know you, they’ve always heard about it or whatever. And, sure, sometimes they go into shock and they apologize. They’re apologizing for themselves for making a mistake because they think they’re such men of the world and they can’t even tell the difference.”

What exactly is the difference? Push Pepper to try and define herself and she’ll say she’s “a transsexual performer. Transvestite is really the wrong term. To me, that’s primarily heterosexual men who get an erotic thrill from wearing women’s undergarments. So I think ‘transsexual performer’ best fits me.”

Then does Pepper feel that she’s trapped inside the wrong body?

“Oh, they all say that. That’s some old line somebody thought up and they all trot it out. You can be trapped in life if you don’t watch out, you know what I mean? No, I don’t feel that way. Is there such a thing as a pre-woman? An almost-woman? That’s closer. I suppose I’d like to be a woman but I didn’t think I have to go through all that — surgery and changes and all — to accomplish that.”

What she has gone through is hormone treatments (“but that was a long time ago”) and electrolysis, but — she emphasizes—no surgery. “What was the motivation or the attraction?” she says. “I think everyone who does certain work has to have a natural affinity for it. I don't think I'd have been good as a mechanic or a garbage collector. As a kid, there are certain things you always think about and you just go on from there. I guess I always wanted to be a great actress, I really wanted to perform for people and that's where the dress came in. I can't pinpoint any exact moment when I decided this."

Other details about Pepper's life also are difficult to pin down. Trying to get concrete, definite answers out of her is like boxing with a shadow—a deliberate attempt by Pepper to remain "a Madame X, all mystery and intrigue." She's shy about revealing her age, although when pushed she'll own up to a couple of years over 30. She tends to glide over background by saying, "I was born in New York and we moved around and somehow I ended up in Chicago," although someone else says, "As I understand it, she's just a Polish kid from Detroit." She lives in a small apartment just a bat of an eyelash away from the Ambassador East; someone who's been there says, "It's nothing special because most of Chili's money goes into her clothes or the bank."

What about some people's suspicions that she is just too good, her legs too sexily feminine? That perhaps she's pulling off a Victor/Victoria ruse?

"Well, thank you, but no. I'm a guy."

OK. What rest room does she use?

"Dressed like this, do I have a choice? The ladies, always the ladies."

Does she shop the makeup counters?

"No, that I don't do," she says as if something risqué had been suggested. "I'm faithful to certain brands — Orlane, Borghese for shadows, Fashion Flair for great lipsticks and blushers."

The name she was born with? "I'd rather not say. Not that I'm ashamed of it or what I am, but Chili Pepper

"My god, you look like a chili pepper. It stuck."

is my name now. A friend of mine came up with it. I don't tan well and once I really got red. He said, 'My God, you look like a chili pepper.' It just stuck. Even my mother calls me that now."

Has she ever seen Pepper perform?

"Well, she doesn't have to. She's seen me all my life."

Pepper will say that she grew up in a wonderful family where her father is a business executive and her mother was practically a child bride at 14, that she was basically an only child with a sister coming along 15 years later, that if she wasn't thinking of being an actress then "maybe I thought about being a doctor. You know, the standard doctor, lawyer, family-oriented kind of job. You know how your family always says, 'Oh if you become a doctor or a lawyer, you'll be set for life and you'll help a lot of people and you'll be happy.' But something happens as you get older; your taste varies. I've been lucky. My mother is supportive and understanding and if it bothers my father, he never talks about it. He knows that I'm my own person and that my profession has nothing to do with the love my parents have for each other or for me."

As for achieving her star status, Pepper credits hard work and her sense of professional commitment. "And it doesn't hurt that I have scandalously gorgeous legs. But the

My Date With Debby

When I found her at the Greyhound Station she was a helpless T.V., new to the big city and fresh off the farm. "I wants to be a big-time T.V.!", she innocently told me. I said, "Let's go shopping!" She was so sweet. She was concerned about spending too much of my money . . . taking up too much of my time. Slowly her transformation took place. The hair coiffed, the make-up smoothly applied, she looked like a "real" woman.

"I ain't never gonna be able to stand up in these," she whined. I reassured her that we'd rehearse over and over again until she learned to walk and act just like a woman.

Soon my dream became reality. She stood before me as I cowered at her leather-clad torso. The mystique had changed her to her very core. She was now the cold bitch I had always desired. As she picked up the phone and began to ignore me I felt the loathsome swelling between my furry legs.

The Queen of the Universe

Grab your heels and hair spray 'cause it's time again for the annual event of glamour and decadence, La Rey's Queen of the Universe Ball!

On this page: La Rey tops La Rey in this homage to "Kiss of the Spider Woman" with a danse symbolique. Delectable boys dangling in webs of transvestism delight all. Below: Last year's reigning Queen, Anna performs in an original number as the Cat Woman.

The Universal Ball has several categories, costume, and evening gown for the "women" and costume and bathing suit for the men. On this page we see some of the costumes representing many nations.

The Queen of the Universe 1986

To add to the festivities, many of the contestants include their friends as attendants and assistants. Many a healthy young boy is sought to heave his portion of a sedan chair.

The Queen of the Universe 1986

At left: Miss Sweden caused sparks to fly as she accepted the best costume award. Her headdress caught on the lighting fixtures above!

Many nations are represented with a special emphasis on the Eurasian and Indonesian countries.

As long time attenders of the Universal competition, we at F.M.I. are constantly amazed at the ever escalating cost and glamour involved in the evening gown portion.

The Queen of the Universe 1986

Details are often the elements that lend the authenticity to an ensemble that completes the look. Hours of time are put into manicures and pedicures.

Shopping for that perfect pair of high heels. Hours under a blistering hair dryer, all to achieve the effect of . . . female.

The Queen of the Universe 1986

TV CONFESSIONS

Chris went into deep thought about the subject. His mother had been right in her saying that his father had left all of them well off. But how long would a few thousand dollars last? And there was his funds to be split three ways. Eventually he would have to go to work. Perhaps college was some answer for the time being, and through college he could get a degree in something or other, and that might help when he did have to get out in the work-a-day world. But what would he do with the uppermost desire in his mind.

He got up from the chair and went to the closet where he selected a short skirt and a bulky knit sweater, brown sweater and red skirt. He got into them as quickly as he could after getting into a brassiere and panties again . . . short socks and low-heeled shoes completed it except for a knit cap. The college girl stared back at him from the mirror, even without makeup.

"But can I do it there?"

"You bet your ass," said the upperclassman to whom he talked some weeks after he had started in Northridge College of Business. "You can do just about what you want around here . . . I mean dress the way you want. All the faculty are weird in one way or another. They get paid by attendance. They don't care what you wear. You want to show up in drag, you do, just as long as you show up, and don't be surprised if a lot of your sisters might be your brothers . . . you look at the front of the sweaters and they might have the same thing under them that you will have. You just wear what you want, honey, and don't worry about what anybody else thinks 'cause most of

*"The college girl

the mirror."*

them are doing the same thing, or worse. And by the same token, don't expect all those short-haired ones wearing blue work shirts and Levis to be the boys they might look like."

"You mean there are actually girls with the bodies I adore who want to be boys . . . dress like them?"

"Where do you come from Chris, Podunk? Look, you like to put on the girl's dresses. You think you're the only one who likes doing something like that? Of course there are the girls who want to look like boys. We got lots of them around here and you are going to meet them. But most of them won't even want to associate with you."

"Good God, why?"

"Because you got what they want, and you're not using it the way they would . . . see what I mean?"

Chris didn't really understand, but he muttered, "Yeah, I guess so."

"You don't" said his opponent, "but you will." Then the fellow minced off in a walk Chris couldn't understand; but he would, Talley was that way!

Chris was wearing a yellow nylon nightgown when his roommate came back to their small apartment where they shared the rent. Chris was nearly asleep after tossing and turning in bed for more than two hours about the studies he had gone through earlier in the evening. Talley didn't turn on the lights, but Chris heard him enter the one room apartment, and in the dark he listened to the bigger fellow strip down to his shorts and then he was sitting on the edge of Chris' bed.

"I didn't get any tonight, Chris."

Chris hunched up higher on his pillow. He was concerned, but he didn't what what he was concerned about. "Any what, Talley?"

"Any ass, that's what!" Talley smelled of booze, and his breath came from the same distillery.

"That's important?"

"That's important! You ever needed to stick your dick in an ass, Chris?" He didn't let Chris answer as he continued. "Course you didn't. You just wrap your fingers around your cock and that's all the satisfaction you need. Well, I'm not that way. When I got to have sex, I got to have a body under me. A boy's body. Get what I mean. I want to stick my dick into a boy's ass. A cute boy, just like you. Soft and fragile. Like with the lesbians. There's got to be the butch and the fluff. Well, I'm the butch, guess who's going to be the fluff tonight?" Again he didn't give Chris a word of answer. "Sometimes I like real hard he-men. Tonight I'm ready to get the spoils . . . anything I can get, and I bet you're a virgin . . . no don't tell me . . . I'm going to find out." He dropped his shorts beside the bed. "Drag Queen or not you're going to get assfucked. Turn over."

"You've got to be kidding."

Talley doubled up his big fist and held it close under Chris' nose. "This tells you I'm not kidding. Turn over!"

"But . . . but . . . nobody's ever . . . I've never done anything like that. You can't do that to me." It wasn't a very hard hit, but the fist made Chris' nose know that Talley meant business. "See what I mean?" Tally emphasized.

"Don't hurt me." Chris slowly turned over on his stomach. His hand reached back as if to protect the opening to his rectum, but all his fingers felt was the enormous cock that was soon going to be inserted into him. His fingers wrapped around it the same as he would have done his own if he were going to have a session with himself - and it was at that point something fired off within himself. He felt the steam welling up in his balls and the steam sent the heatwaves through his cock and it became hard. He knew he was going to be hurt and probably hurt bad, but that suddenly didn't matter any more. His hand grew tighter around Talley's cock — for some reason he didn't want to turn it loose - not because it was going to be jabbed up his ass, but for the simple reason he felt the illusion of the girl in the green of it walking down the street and wanting to be taken by all the men who watched . . . and here it was going to be for real . . . here was a man with an enormous cock, much too big for her who was going to put it into the only cunt she had.

*"His mind was a whirl
of angora, of green sweaters and of yellow cardigans."*

He was going to take the girl for the first time in her life . . . a man was going to invade, violate her insides . . . he was going to fuck hell out of her, and he would shoot his sticky juices into that orifice.

Chris' mind whirled in a whirlpool of fantasy as to what it would be like, to be taken as a real girl might be taken — but the size of that cock his hand was gripping . . . could his ass take it . . . would he scream . . . if he did it would do no good. Talley was determined in his demands. The light punch on the nose proved that. He was going to be fucked . . . and . . . how he wished he had on more than the nightie — good God, he still had his panties on . . . would he shove it up through the leg of the panties?

The questions were quickly answered as Talley's big hands ripped the crotch right out of the panties. One hand had held the base part of the material and gave one violent tug and the crotch was gone and his hard dick was left to be smothered by the sheets under him . . . his ass was exposed, but Chris still held onto the enormous shaft.

By this time Chris was himself breathing hard in expectation. His one word came out in the same type of passionately heated gasp. "No!" His mind was a whirl of angora, green sweaters, yellow cardigans; of Shirley, of Ruthie and of Cindy; of the five finger symphony he had played alone so often; of his father seeing the juice spurting against the mirror; of brassieres being filled with toilet paper and falsies; of rain storms and showers; of the ruses used in getting into some girl's clothes; of wanting to walk the streets in the illusion of what he was not, but felt he was; and now right then he was going to be raped the same way any girl on the street might, or in some dark hallway, — was not the room dark — was it not a hallway — was Talley not about to perform rape?

No! His mind changed to a different thought pattern. Talley was not really going to rape. Violate yes, but not rape. He had turned over purposely to permit Talley's entrance. Sure, Talley had hit him in the nose to force the issue, but something else could have been done. But the Christine part of Chris had wanted to do just what had happened — turn over — permit Talley to have his pleasures — and perhaps he, Chris, might have some pleasure also.

Then he was no longer Christopher, she was Christine and she wished she could roll over and face the man who would momentarily be fucking her, but she couldn't. Entry would be almost impossible in that position. Oh how she looked forward to that first fuck, to have her hymen broken; her cherry split; to no longer be a virgin . . . Why didn't he put it in? He had already torn out the crotch of her panties . . . what was holding him back. "Oh, for God sake put it into me; fuck me; please fuck me," her mind cried out silently into the near silence of the black room.

The first stab of pain as Talley's giant prick head entered through the rim of Chris' rectum sent a stab of pain through his body that threatened to send him into a faint. He screamed into the pillow and his hands clutched at the pillow in complete terror and desperation. "Oh, please, please," he pleaded to himself silently under the vocal screams. "Don't let me pass out. I want to know it all. I've got to know it all" Then as the head dug in deeper and he felt the length of the cock shaft entering he screamed again and again with the torture of the starting of the full entry. "Oh, God, is this what a girl goes through the first time they get a prick stuck into them?"

The cock moved steadily into the canal, and then he felt Talley's balls touching the cheeks of his ass, and the cock began to slide in and out, the balls bouncing on his ass with each inward thrust. Chris suddenly felt his own hard cock throbbing and pulsating under his lower stomach, trapped between that area and the sheets, it could not escape. He wanted to put his hand down there and jerk it off, but the pain increased and he had to keep both hands gripping the pillow to keep from throwing up. But Talley continued to plow into him, and then Chris felt Talley come down over his back and his hands went around him so that he could grip the falsies through the nightgown, and Talley grabbed and squeezed and kneaded them as if he were working on the real thing, and Chris suddenly felt they were the real thing, and she didn't feel the pain any longer, and the heat swell in her cunt and the heat was terrifyingly beautiful — she found herself moving her ass in a similar rhythm with his fucking movements. There was no longer any pain, only the sensations of erotica, an exotic growth of sensations she never knew existed.

Her mind left her body and the fantasy of pictures focused her mind onto the realities she believed existed. She was slipping out of her satin, white wedding dress, and she was with the man she had just married, and they were in the honeymoon suite of a beautiful hotel, and she watched him undress and he was Talley, and he had such a fine body, and such an enormous cock, she had never seen anything so enormous, she wondered if she could take it all, she knew she would have to take it in her mouth the same as Cindy had taken Chris' so long ago, and she knew what he would do to her cunt, the same as Chris and done to Cindy, Cindy had taught Chris how it was done, and Chris knew what the man would feel.

And when she had taken off her panties, Talley came down and sucked on her clit, and his tongue did so much to the lips of her lovenest, and when it went inside, all the way inside, all the way inside, all she wanted his prick deep into her . . . ass . . . The picture melted and Chris experienced the swelling of Talley's dick, and then the sudden explosion of hot lava from his volcanic shaft, and Chris knew that his own cock was exploding beneath his stomach . . .

"Yes," thought Chris over his next martini, still having not put anything over the chemise and drinking down yet another martini . . . "Nobody is going to miss Solly."

CHILI PEPPER

show at The Baton works because of so many talented performers who give their all — not just me.”

Still, there's no denying that Chili Pepper gives perhaps a little more. At the Baton, she shows a lot more skin than any of the other performers, favoring costumes that resemble slinky designer pajama tops. Her peek-a-boo gowns are designed by Don and Fred or Ron Chew, her custom jewelry by Steve Feinstein at Feinstein and Son. Her “songs-with-a-story” act, where she talks and lip syncs her way through lyrics usually about some man who's out of line, is strictly a Pepper creation. So is her famous running commentary (“Don't bring any Washingtons or Lincolns around me. I want to see Jacksons and Grants”) while audience members stuff bills down her blusher-enhanced décolletage.

“As a woman performer, I'm a real feminist,” Pepper says. “I love tough women, women who have a lot of nerve, women who stand up for what they believe. But offstage, I'm more demure.”

Let's hope so. One writer remembers that when he was doing a backstage at the Baton story, Pepper originally lived up to that demure claim by being the only performer who refused to let him watch her dress. Later, he was startled when she sidled up behind him, grabbed his crotch and whispered in his ear, “Are you hot?”

“My cartoon on the stage is a different character, more bold and brassy,” she says. “In my off hours, I'm just like everyone else.” She spends that time seeing friends, going to movies, reading Cosmopolitan and Vogue, attending parties. “Chili always makes a big entrance,” remembers one party-goer.

Although Pepper straightforwardly told Phil Donahue on his show last year, “I'm gay,” she gets coy about the issue today. “I have male and female friends, but I don't care what you do at home, so please don't care about what I do.”

Yet some people do care, if not about her private life, then in some vague, troubled way about him or her. There can be, Pepper admits, some people who come to the club and then can't handle it. “But that's only because they can't deal with their own sexuality. Otherwise, why would you be afraid of me? We're not promoting anything, we're not promoting fear. We're just there, trying to be entertaining. So if people have a big reaction, it's coming from within themselves.”

With that settled, it's time to move on. On the way out, Pepper spots the two conventioners, who have persuaded some other lucky ladies to join them. “Look at that, we're just dead meat to them now that they've found someone else.” Then she leans closer and continues in a sisterly whisper: “But don't forget, they asked us first.”
